DAR Holds Memorial; 6000 Here For Congress

Ceremony Prelude To Formal Opening Listed Today at Constitution Hall

By Lee Grove
Post Reporter

Nearly 1000 members of the Daughters of the American Revolution yesterday in Constitution Hall paid tribute to DAR members who have died during the past year.

The impressive program was a prelude to the formal opening of the national society's five-day, Fifty-ninth Continental Congress at 8:30 p. m. today.

T. Russ Hill, president of the Martin Parry Corp., Detroit, Mich., author and lecturer, will be the chief speaker at the opening session, it was announced yesterday.

Registration Today

Registration will begin at 8 a. m. today. A record-breaking 4000 delegates and alternates and nearly 2000 other members are expected to attend the congress, which is featured this year by the triennial election of officers.

In yesterday's memorial service Mrs. Roscoe C. O'Byrne, retiring president general, paid tribute to the 2760 deceased members "who have looked for the good in others and have willingly given their best in a simple and unostentatious way."

Among those whose memory was honored were Mrs. Mary Abbie Emery Hannay of the District's Our Flag Chapter, daughter of the last mayor of Washington, and Mrs. Katherine Sibley Hendrie Green of Louisa St. Clair Chapter, Michigan, both charter members of the national society.

The service was followed by a brief "Tribute to Founders" ceremony in the Memorial Continental Hall garden.

Wreaths were laid at the Founders' Memorial Monument, and subsequently at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington Cemetery, and at the tombs of George and Martha Washington, Mount Vernon.

Open house and a tea were held in the organization's new administration building. The $900,000 structure will be dedicated Tuesday.

Last night the junior membership's annual buffet supper was held at the Hotel Mayflower.

Miss Mary Helen North of Norman, Okla., national chairman of the group limited to women under 30 years of age, presided. Mrs. O'Byrne was the guest speaker.

A message from President Truman will be read at the opening session tonight.

100,000 Visitors Jam Capital's Traffic Lanes on Spring Day

(Ashok and Shanti Make Debut, Page B-1)

By Melvin Altshuler
Post Reporter

Washington came close to bursting its seams yesterday as an estimated 100,000 visitors—plus nearly that number of District residents—jammed the town's highways, byways and bridges.

It was a day of memorable weather—best the area has had in 11 days—and of even more memorable traffic tie-ups. It was a day when:

Sixty-six thousand persons visited Lincoln Memorial, breaking a 10-year record.

Eighty thousand persons, many drawn by the two baby elephants from India, toured the Zoo to make the attendance "one of the largest in history."

One hundred and twenty thousand persons in 20,000 cars swarmed the Tidal Basin section to see the cherry blossom trees, and twenty thousand cars passed through Rock Creek Park.

It was "the" day, however, for a fantastic traffic situation on the four main bridges connecting Washington and Virginia.

Bumper to Bumper

On Chain Bridge cars were backed up—bumper to bumper—for 2 miles in late afternoon. Key Bridge was backed to Main st. in Rosslyn, Va.

The line of cars trying to cross the 14th Street Bridge stretched almost to the Pentagon, and Memorial Bridge was backed up to Arlington Cemetery. Two minor accidents on the 14th Street Bridge at the same time didn't help matters at all.

Long Time to Cross

It took one motorist on the Memorial Bridge three quarters of an hour to cross into the District. Yet Memorial was reported the "clearest" of the spans.

Washington wasn't having much of an easier time. Eight additional motorcycle patrolmen and six additional foot policemen were called in for extra traffic dufy.

Park Police reported jams on Constitution ave. and Independence aves. Parking at Tidal Basin, Park Police Capt. Harold Stewart added, "almost got beyond control."

What was the reason for it all?

Logrolling Slows Drive For Economy

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Logrolling efforts to increase appropriations carried in the 29-billion-dollar omnibus appropriation bill have slowed to a walk the recent bipartisan House economy drive.

This was indicated last night as House appropriations chiefs reported a barrage of demands for local projects piling up during the 10-day House Easter recess.

As the House prepared to resume work on the big bill beginning Tuesday, Appropriations Chairman Clarence Cannon (D., Mo.), told The Washington Post he was frankly more concerned over the threat of unjustified increases in the bill than that drastic cuts will be made.

Arms Increase Sought

In addition to pressure to add new projects to the so-called "pork" civil functions chapter of the bill, and a drive to double the 75-million-dollar hospital construction fund, House Armed Services Chairman Carl Vinson (D., Ga.), heads a fight to increase defense outlays by $583,289,221, primarily for more planes.

Republican leaders, however, were still committed to offer a motion substantially reducing total expenditures in the bill.

House Republican Leader Joseph W. Martin, jr., expects to call a meeting of his Republican Policy Committee this week to blueprint GOP economy objectives.

Originally scheduled before the recess, Martin postponed the party

Ex-Anacostia Star, Dentist Among Dead

Ralph Fraser, Bert Roseberry And Dr. Barnhard All Traffic Victims

Two youthful rookies of the Washington Baseball Club and a Washington dentist died yesterday in separate traffic accidents in Virginia and Maryland. Two other ballplayers were injured.

One of the dead ballplayers was a Washington boy, as was one of two others injured in the first accident.

In the crash in which the dentist died, one other person was critically hurt and two others were injured.

The dead in the two accidents were:

Ralph Fraser, jr., son of Mrs. Ralph Fraser, 1913 T pl. se., and of the late Ralph (Monk) Fraser, once an outfielder for the New York Giants. He was killed in a collision south of Emporia, Va., where he was a member of a Nats' Class D, Virginia farm club. He was an all-high football halfback with Anacostia in 1947.

Driver Killed

Bert M. Roseberry, of Manassas, Va., a pitcher, and driver of the auto in which Fraser was killed and two other young ballplayers injured.

Dr. James L. Barnhard, 49, of 3520 28th st. se., a dentist with offices at 1726 I st. nw., who died at Prince Georges General Hospital, Cheverly, Md., after a head-on crash at 4:45 p. m., yesterday, on the Largo rd., Route 202, near Upper Marlboro, Md.

The injured were:

Jimmy Smithson, son of Mr. and Mrs. James E. Smithson, 1822 18th st. se., also an Anacostia High School graduate and a member of the Emporia ball club.

Robert Yates Brown of Marshall, Va., another member of the Emporia club. Both of these youths were treated for cuts and bruises. Smithson also suffered a fractured nose.

Roger Thomas, 22, of 2817 Connecticut ave. nw., in the auto with Dr. Barnhard. He was at Prince Georges Hospital in a critical condition with multiple fractures.

Car Out of Control

Prince Georges County police said the car occupied by Thomas and Dr. Barnhard went out of control and apparently slammed headon into one driven by Mrs. Mary Fuchs, 49, of 6450 Offutt st., Chevy Chase, Md.

The first car, police said, overturned. Dr. Barnhard and Thomas were hurled out and the car rolled over on them. Mrs. Fuchs, and Mrs. K. L. Davis of 1227 S. Thomas st., Arlington, a passenger, were treated for cuts and bruises at the scene.

Dr. Barnard, a native of Akron, Ohio, attended schools in Phoenix, Ariz., and obtained his dental training at Georgetown University. He has lived here about 30 years.

He was a member of the District of Columbia Dental Society, American Dental Association, and the Corinthian Yacht Club. He is survived by his wife, the former Wanda Aber; three sons, Lee, 10, Robert, 4, and James Dale, his mother, Mrs. Grace Barnhard, and his brother, Dr. Ralph Barnhard, also a dentist, both of Washington.

Union Rejects 'Final Offer' By Chrysler

UAW Concedes Firm Has Proposed Sound Plan for Pensions

Detroit, April 16.—Chrysler Corp. made the striking CIO United Auto Workers a big concession tonight in what it called its "final offer" to end an 82-day-old strike. The union rejected it but left the way open for a compromise.

UAW President Walter Reuther said the auto firm's latest proposal was "a major step" toward settlement of the pension dispute. He conceded that Chrysler had offered to set up an actuarially sound pension plan to provide $100 a month pensions, including social security.

The union's rejection did not completely rule out possibility of an early settlement. The negotiators went back into session to attempt to thresh out difference on the company's offer. After confering for an hour tonight, they recessed until 10 a. m. Monday.

Among the reasons listed by the UAW for rejecting the Chrysler offer were:

The union claimed under the company proposal a worker would lose credit toward a pension if he were laid off for two years or more.

The UAW also objected to compulsory retirement at age 68. It said an employe should be allowed to work past 68 if willing and able.

The company offer also was termed inadequate as to the hospital-medical-insurance benefits. Chrysler agreed to pay half of the cost of hospital and surgical benefits, but the union insisted the company stand all the cost.

Chrysler described its proposal as "the best pension and insurance offer that any large company in the automotive industry has ever offered the union."

The company said it offered the union three choices in pension plans, including one like the UAW signed with Ford last September. One of the others was similar to the Bethlehem Steel plan, Chrysler said, and the third was along the line of the U. S. Steel plan.

Lee, Grant Meet at Appomattox In Sunshine and in Peace

By Richard Morris
Post Reporter

Appomattox, Va., April 16.—A retired major general and a former Army sergeant, Grant and Lee by name, witnessed a modern reunion of the North and South here today in dedicating the restored McLean house.

Ten thousand persons closed ranks in good fellowship and swarmed over the hallowed ground where Robert E. Lee, with a mere 9000 exhausted troops standing by, surrendered the Southern armies to Ulysses S. Grant.

Lee's great-grandson, Robert E. Lee 4th, and Grant's grandson, Maj. Gen. Ulysses S. Grant 3d, greeted each other cordially on the porch of the McLean house, an unimposing brick structure where the articles of surrender were signed 85 years ago.

The 25-year-old Lee, a World War II infantry sergeant and now a resident of San Francisco, cut a red and blue ribbon stretched across the front steps, while the 68-year-old Grant snipped a white strand in between. They shared a pair of scissors after Grant had declined to use an open-bladed scout knife with the aside, "I don't think Lee would trust me with this sharp instrument."

What had been a prelude of almost stilted solemnity dissolved into a ceremony of warm camaraderie.

Senate Aides To Follow Up Red Charges

By the United Press

Senator Millard E. Tydings (D., Md.) revealed yesterday that a staff of former FBI agents and attorneys will start an independent investigation today of charges that the State Department is Communist-infiltrated.

Tydings, chairman of a Senate Foreign Relations Subcommittee looking into the Red charges leveled by Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.) said the group will meet behind closed doors today to map specific instructions for its new staff.

There was a possibility it will be ordered to try to obtain "summaries" of FBI files on some or all of the 117 persons whose loyalty has been questioned by McCarthy.

President Truman flatly rejected a subcommittee subpena for the FBI files themselves. But he set a possible precedent when he let FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover prepare a special summary of his files on Far Eastern expert Owen Lattimore — McCarthy's "make or break" case.

Tydings, who contends that the summary "cleared" Lattimore of charges that he is Russia's top spy, issued a new challenge to McCarthy yesterday to come forward with "some evidence" to support his case.

In a Baltimore broadcast, Tydings asserted that McCarthy has yet to produce any "conclusive evidence that could prove disloyalty or sabotage or espionage or any other thing that might remotely be connected with this investigation."

Republican subcommittee members have challenged the statement that the FBI summary cleared Lattimore, and McCarthy has asserted that his charges will be backed up Thursday by public testimony of Louis F. Budenz, former Communist editor.

Tydings said McCarthy has taken the position that all he has to do is make charges and it is up to the committee to "go out and get the evidence" which he himself does not have.

McCarthy had no comment on the new developments.

Ship Finds Plane Raft But Search Is Abandoned

Discovery Is First Real Clew to Fate Of U. S. Navy Craft Missing for Week

Copenhagen, April 16 (AP). A little British freighter picked up in the Baltic Sea today a derelict American life raft which a United States Air Force spokesman considers to be escape equipment of an American Navy Privateer plane that vanished mysteriously April 8.

"We think the raft belonged to the missing Privateer," Capt. L. E. Curdes said, "but we cannot be completely sure of it until we have the raft here."

That may be a day or two. But the raft appeared to be the first concrete clew to the fate of the plane and its 10-man crew, the subject of world speculation since Russia announced Tuesday there was a gunfight over Latvia three days before between an American bomber and a Soviet fighter.

No Sign of Life

The 1813-ton Beechland radioed that she found the yellow float, but no sign of life, about 45 miles east of Stockholm.

The Privateer, a four-engined PB-4Y, disappeared after leaving the north German coast on what was billed as a routine training flight from Wiesbaden, Germany, to Copenhagen. U. S. authorities said it was unarmed.

Despite the discovery of the raft, the U. S. Air Force called off the hunt tonight as scheduled. The long search, in which Denmark, Sweden and Norway assisted, had yielded not a single sign that any of the Navy airmen remained alive.

Weather Hinders Search

Bad weather limited the operations today. Fog closed in. The weary air crews were called back to Copenhagen's Kastrup Airport before dark. Surface vessels plowed back to port through choppy seas.

The Beechland's master, Capt. J. Henderson, plans to airmail the raft to American authorities here as soon as the vessel touches port. He expects to dock at noon Monday. He radioed markings which Americans said showed the raft was manufactured in the United States in 1948.

United States Air Force officers say they fear the Navy plane was a target of Russian fighter fire, since no other American plane was in the Baltic area April 8.

They stress, however, that the

Convict Aims Car At Wife; Kills Man, Hurts Boy

Jellico, Tenn., April 16 (U.P.).—An escaped convict chose a truck as the weapon to kill his wife, but instead crushed to death an innocent bystander and almost killed a 15-year-old boy, Sheriff Rose Kitts reported today.

Richard Rue, 37, was shot and jailed immediately after he drove the truck through the window of the bus station restaurant here last night.

Scooped up on the front bumper was P. L. Hill, 25, who died four hours later of a crushed skull, wounds from the glass, and loss of blood from an almost severed leg.

Inside the restaurant, the vehicle struck Billy Robertson, 15, a one-legged schoolboy who was playing a pinball machine. He is in critical condition.

Sheriff Kitts said Rue fled Bushy Mountain State Prison, 80 miles away, to come here to talk his wife out of a divorce. His wife, mother of six children, works in the restaurant.

Rue, who was sent up in 1946 to serve 10 years for murder, stole a prison truck for the trip, Kitts said. He and his wife had a dispute and he knocked her down, but was thrown out by the restaurant manager.

Rue drove the truck about two blocks away, turned and bore down on the restaurant. Hill, a Navy veteran, was on the sidewalk.

"Rue told us he meant to kill his wife," the sheriff said. "As it was, she was unhurt. Somebody in the crowd shot Rue in the hip, and he gave up right away."

Pact With Poland 'Not Heard Of,' Vatican Asserts

Vatican City, April 16 (AP).—Members of the Vatican Secretariat of State today said a reported agreement between Poland's Communist-led government and the Roman Catholic church had "not been heard of" at the Vatican.

Adam Stefan Cardinal Sapieha who is here from Poland on a Holy Year visit, refused to comment.

A member of his office said, "It seems strange that an agreement should have been reached when the cardinal, leader of the Polish episcopate, is away from the country."

A Vatican expert on Polish affairs explained that three Polish bishops had been entrusted with negotiations with the Polish government, but said it was doubtful if they had the authority to sign such an agreement themselves.

2 New Blood Tests for Cancer Called 90 Percent Accurate

Atlantic City, April 16 (AP).—Two new blood tests for cancer were announced today to the American Association for Cancer Research.

Both were said to be at least 90 percent or more accurate in spotting people who have cancers.

One new test was developed by Dr. H. S. Penn of the University of California at Los Angeles.

It is based on mixing blood serum with a fat-like substance obtained from cancerous livers. Cancer is indicated if particles form in the serum, and the cloudy serum clears up in color.

In clinical tests, it gave a positive answer of cancer in 98.6 percent of 830 persons known to have cancer, said Drs. George C. Hall, Penn, A. H. Dowdy and A. W. Bellamy of Wadsworth Hospital, Veterans' Administration Center, and UCLA.

They said it was about as accurate in spotting small, localized cancers as those that have spread through the body.

It gave false answers, indicating cancer, in only half of 1 percent of nearly 1000 persons who were apparently free of cancer, they said.

The second test was reported by Dr. Emil Weiss of People's Hospital, Chicago.

His test is based on mixing human blood with three different dyes and observing color changes.

Dr. Weiss said it gave positive results in 90 percent of all kinds of cancer.

The new tests make a total of more than half a dozen developed in recent months. All are based on some apparent change in the blood when people have cancer or some other disease. None tells just where a cancer lies in the body.

Silver Spring Naval Flier Is Killed in Training Run

A Silver Spring Naval Reserve flier, graduate student at the University of Maryland, was killed when a Hellcat fighter crashed and burned yesterday at Webster Field, an auxiliary landing field about 10 miles south of the Patuxent River Naval Air Training Station in southern Maryland.

He was Lieut. James M. Norris, 28, of 8113 University la. He was a member of the 661st Fighter Squadron, a reserve outfit from Anacostia Navy Base which trains on weekends. Navy officers said he was on a rocket-bomber training flight with five other planes, all Hellcat fighters.

The group was to land at Webster Field for checking of armaments, Navy officers said. Lieut. Norris, who was leading, made a tight turn and apparently undershot the runway, officers said. His ship struck a wing on the ground, turned over, and burned. No others were injured.

A native of Rochester, Ind., Lieut. Norris entered the Navy in 1942. He had flight training at Glenview, Ill., and at Jacksonville, Fla., and was a flight instructor at Kingsville, Tex. Later, he was a member of fighter squadrons, but did not have overseas service. He was discharged in June, 1946.

After that, he attended the University of Maryland, receiving his degree there, and recently did postgraduate work in physical chemistry.

Mrs. Tillett Resigns as Party Vice Chairman

Raleigh, N. C., April 16 (U.P.).—The vice chairman of the Democratic National Committee, Mrs. Charles W. Tillett of Charlotte, N. C., resigned today "to devote all my energies" to the election of Senator Frank P. Graham (D., N. C.), to the United States Senate.

Mrs. Tillett had held the post since 1940. She mailed her resignation to National Democratic Chairman William Boyle.

Graham, former president of the University of North Carolina, was appointed to the Senate March 22, 1949, after the death of the late Senator J. Melville Broughton. This is his first campaign for an elective office.

'Atlantic Council' Proposed

Bidault Urges Coordination Of Pact Nations' Economies

Paris, April 16 (NYHT).—Premier Georges Bidault today proposed that the United States join with the other 11 Atlantic Pact states in establishing a "high Atlantic council" to coordinate the member nations' respective economies.

In a speech opening the thirty-second international trade fair at Lyon, Bidault said that Western defense would be ineffective unless the treaty states also directed their trade for the common good and without "fear of exploitation."

Bidault formally suggested that the Big Three discuss his proposal when they meet in London May 8.

Without central economic direction, Bidault warned, there is a grave danger of less prosperous nations' compromising Western defense by overtaxing their industrial plants with excessive armament demands. In this sense, the Premier's speech seemed advance notice that the United States would have to bear a large part of the cost of reestablishing an adequate system of defense on the continent.

"The necessities of defense are not contestable," said the Premier, "but if to satisfy ourselves on this point, each on his own, each nation had to compromise its economy, the security apparatus would collapse very soon for lack of support."

Furthermore, Bidault said, "what we are trying to save—that is, peace and liberty—would find their defeat in the interior of the country whose armament, accomplished painfully and alone, would result in ruin."

This seemed a clear reference to the French position. If France intends to hold the gains her recovery has made against the Communists, it seems evident that excessive armament costs must not reduce her standard of living.

Lobby Probers Study Real Estate Board

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

The Special House Committee to Investigate Lobbying Activities will reopen its hearings Wednesday with an inquiry into the National Association of Real Estate Boards.

Herbert U. Nelson, president of the association, and Calvin Snyder, another official of the association, have been invited to testify.

This has caused flurry in the committee because neither Nelson nor Snyder had replied to the committee's letter of invitation.

The National Association of Real Estate Boards, however, said Nelson had just returned to his Washington office after a trip to Europe and a stop-over in Chicago and would answer the letter immediately.

Political fireworks are expected to erupt during the inquiry.

President Truman and other proponents of public housing have charged the association with powerful lobbying tactics to kill all public and low-rent housing measures.

A spokesman for the National Association of Real Estate Boards said their group had cooperated fully with the committee in its study of their lobbyig activities.

Obstetricians here say they have seldom heard of a woman having twins twice in a row. And none recalled a case where the sex was repeated—a boy and a girl—when twins succeeded twins.

5 Armed Services Hospitals Held Unsuitable for VA Use

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Even should the armed forces abandon five hospitals as contemplated there is little possibility the Veterans' Administration could use them, a VA spokesman said yesterday.

On the other hand, it was reported that Defense Secretary Johnson had agreed to reconsider his recent order to close the five hospitals in question and curtail service at others. The five slated for closing by June 30 were Percy Jones, Battle Creek, Mich.; Murphy General, Waltham, Mass.; Valley Forge, Phoenixville, Pa.; Long Beach, Long Beach, Calif., and Oliver General, Augusta, Ga.

Congress Protests

Johnson's reported decision to reconsider the outback followed protests from members of Congress whose home districts would be affected. Cancellation of the closing order has been recommended by a House Armed Forces subcommittee headed by Representative Rivers (D., S. C.).

Suggestions in the past that any hospitals abandoned by the services might be taken over by the VA to save the cost of new constuction are an old story to that agency. Its spokesman said the question had been fully studied and conversion of the services facilities into VA hospitals turned down for these reasons:

1. All service hospitals available are of temporary of semi-permanent construction with a very short remaining period of usefulness.

2. Cost of maintaining rapidly deteriorating buildings is unreasonably high.

3. Because of their style of construction, these hospitals require much larger staffs than permanent structures built for the VA.

4. VA hospitals must be located near to medical colleges if the VA medical training program is to be successfully maintained.

Old Hotel Cited

As an example, the spokesman cited Oliver General Hospital at Augusta, Ga., whose main building is a 40-year hotel, surrounded by temporary wartime structures. Not only is the entire layout a fire hazard, he said, but requires a large staff to service its sprawling collection of buildings. In addition, he pointed out, it is so far from the Emory University medical school at Atlanta that it would not be possible to take advantage of assistance from its faculty. As a result of these considerations, a new hospital is planned at Atlanta.

As for the other four service hospitals, the spokesman said that at Battle Creek is built around a hotel and those at Phoenixville, Pa., and Waltham, Mass., are semi-permanent. The hospital at Long Beach has a permanent main building and temporary and semi-permanent satellite buildings. The VA, he added, has already expressed its willingness to take over the Long Beach facility and build a neuro-psychiatric hospital on its present site at Van Nuys, Calif.

Brannan Denies Cooley Charge Of Laxity With Cotton Law

By John W. Ball
Post Reporter

Agriculture Secretary Charles F. Brannan last night issued a spirited denial of charges by Chairman Harold D. Cooley (D., N. C.) of the House Agriculture Committee of lax administration of the new cotton law.

Brannan's statement was contained in a three-page letter to Cooley dated Friday. With it, he released copies of seven exhibits that accompanied it, covering 17 more pages.

"I am much disturbed," he wrote Cooley, "by your statements to the press, charging that the department and the farmer-committeemen had fallen down on the job of informing farmers of their rights under recently enacted legislation.

"I am at a loss to understand the basis for or the reason for these charges. The facts simply do not support any such contention."

Brannan accompanied his statement with details of the steps taken to inform farmers of the new allotments. A copy of each press release and notice sent out from the department was attached to the letter.

Brannan's communication was viewed as an effort to close the rift that recently has developed between Cooley and the Administration. This rift first became public when Cooley attacked President Truman's message to Congress on April 3.

Maragon Goes on Trial Today, Accused of Lying to Senators

John Maragon, ubiquitous little man-about-Washington who once used a White House telephone to make Government deals for his clients, goes on trial here today on charges of lying to a congressional committee.

The former Kansas City bootblack who immigrated to the United States at the age of 15 is accused of lying about his income and employment to a Senate committee investigating "five percenters"—agents who claim they can get Government contracts for a price.

Maragon, who was born on a Greek island in the Ionian Sea 55 years ago, produced some of the most lurid headlines in the entire "five percenter" inquiry. He was linked with alleged perfume oil smuggling and accused of trying to "pressure" Federal agents to grant contracts to his clients.

Even after he got in trouble with the Senate investigators, Maragon was a frequent visitor on Capitol Hill, appearing often in Capitol corridors and in the press galleries.

Less than two weeks ago he managed entree to the packed Senate committee room on the day that Far Eastern Expert Owen Lattimore appeared to refute charges of Senator Joseph R. McCarthy (R., Wis.)—a hearing where admission was limited to special guests.

Extra Gas Tanks Hike Thunderjets' Range

$1-Billion Value

1250 Planes Ordered by AF in 1950

By the United Press

The Air Force has placed orders for about 1250 new planes valued at more than one billion dollars during the current fiscal year, with continued strong emphasis on heavy bombers, it was revealed yesterday.

It was the first disclosure of the Air Force procurement program for the 1950 fiscal year, which ends June 30. The Navy said last week that its plane procurement program for the current year probably will cost about 500 million dollars and involve some 700 planes.

The Air Force figures indicate continued heavy emphasis on Consolidated Vultee B-36 superbombers and the beginning of a major buying program for the Boeing B-47, a six-jet bomber, that flies more than 600 miles an hour.

Aviation Week, trade magazine, will publish the dollar value of the fiscal 1950 contracts today. The Air Force is expected to confirm them soon.

President Truman requested $1,350,000,000 for new Air Force and Navy planes in fiscal 1951, but the Joint Chief of Staff are believed to be about ready to recommend at least a 500-million-dollar increase in that amount.

From 40 to 5? percent of the total $1,200,000,000 involved in this year's contracts will go to airframe manufacturers, according to industry sources. The Navy has placed orders for $234,927,263 worth of airframes out of fiscal 1950 funds.

Here is how the aircraft companies stand when Air Force and Navy orders are combined, but not including thte tvalue of Government-furnished equipment in Navy planes:

Boeing, $336,400,000; Consolidated, $277,600,000; North American, $193,700,000; Lockheed, $173,400,000; Douglas, $123,200,000; Grumman, $96,000,000; Northrop, $81,800,000; Fairchild, $40,600,000; Republic, $37,400,000; McDonnell Aircraft Corp., $34,500,000; Glenn L. Martin Co., $22,300,000; Piasecki, $13,000,000; Chance Vought Division of United Aircraft Corp., $7,800,000.

The Air Force disclosed yesterday that it had substantially boosted the range of its F-84E Thunderjet fighter in a move to get an interim weapon capable of providing jet fighter cover for bombers attacking targets 1000 miles from their base.

Two additional 230-gallon fuel tanks have been hung under the wings of the Republic fighter to give it an operating radius of more than 1000 statute miles, the announcement said.

The Air Force previously has disclosed that it has three jet "penetration" fighters under evaluation—the single-engined North American XF-93, and the heavier twin-engine McDonald XF-88 and Lockheed XF-90. Yesterday's announcement said nothing about the reason for the extension of the F-84's range, but was interpreted as an effort to give the USAF an interim penetration jet fighter.

Like all USAF jet fighters designed and built just after the war, the Thunderjet is an "all-purpose" fighter. It will continue to "double-in-brass," as a tactical fighter employed for close support of ground troops.

Loaded down with rockets and bombs, the F-84E can be used on short tactical missions, using only its internal gas tanks. The plane's chief weakness in this role is its lack of endurance. With a reduced load of armament under the wings, the range and endurance of the fighter previously was increased by adding wing-tip fuel tanks.

Equipped with two such external tanks, the announced combat radius of the F-84E earlier had been announced as 850 statute miles. (The operating combat radius of a plane is the distance it can fly on a mission, perform the mission and return without refueling. A general rule of thumb has been that the radius of action is 40 percent of the range of an airplane.)

The additional fuel tanks are mounted on bomb shackles close to fuselage and are identical with the wing-tip tanks. All four tanks can be jetisoned, if necessary. Carrying the full external gas load of 920 gallons, the fighter can tote no bombs or rockets, officials said, but has six, 50-caliber machine guns for attack.

Yesterday's announcement graphically illustrates the voracious fuel appetite of jet aircraft, as well as recognition of the need for giving conventional bombers fighter protection if at all possible. The four-tank external load of the F-84E is greater than the capacity of the built-in tanks and about double the interior fuel capacity of wartime conventional fighters.

The range of the F-84E, with four extra tanks, is greater than the war-time P-47 and P-51, but its endurance—time in the air—is less. This is important when escorting conventional bombers like the B-29 or B-36. The Air Force is experimenting with all other possible methods of extending the range of jet fighters—including aerial refueling and carrying them as "parasites" without their engines operating on bomber missions until time to go into combat.

Leopold's Bid Raises Query On Legality

Brussels, April 16 (AP).—Exiled King Leopold, in his broadcast to the Nation yesterday, succeeded in getting his supporters and opponents to agree today for the first time in years. But they agreed only that the king's message was unclear and hardly helpful in a quick solution of Belgium's political crisis.

Leopold obliquely told the Nation he was willing, after being returned to the throne, to abandon temporarily his powers to his son, the 19-year-old heir-apparent, Prince Baudouin.

The king left several questions unanswered. Answers were needed before there could be any hope of solving the month-long political crisis over whether Leopold should be restored to his throne. Some of the questions to which both sides want answers:

1. How shall the king delegate his powers to his son?
2. How, legally, can this delegation be organized? There is no provision to this effect in the constitution.
3. How long should the king stay in Belgium?
4. When should the temporary delegation of powers to Prince Baudouin be ended?

Customs Reform Legislation Has Little Chance This Session

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Legislation to overhaul restrictive and cumbersome customs procedure, loudly advertised at the end of last year as a contribution to solving the "dollar gap" problem, has been so delayed that it probably cannot be enacted by this Congress.

The draft bill for a thorough overhaul and streamlining of customs operations is still in the Budget Bureau, it was learned. It awaits White House decision, perhaps this week, on certain policy questions before being submitted to Congress.

But once on Capitol Hill, the legislation will probably be referred to committees already snowed under. And even if it does emerge from them in good time, Congress' eagerness to adjourn early in this campaign year spells poor prospects for passage of legislation offered at this late date.

The measure was drafted in the Treasury Department, where most of the delay occurred. By the nature of the problem—revamping customs procedures accumulated in the huge Taft-Hawley Tariff Act and subsequent amendments—the task was exceptionally complicated, and so is the resulting bill.

The measure reached the Budget Bureau for interdepartmental coordination early in March. Since then, several objections, more technical than policy, have been ironed out with the Department of Agriculture, Tariff Commission and Federal Trade Commission.

Objections to the bill from American industry have been surprisingly few. Only the chemical industry and distillers have voiced major criticism.

The bill does not change any tariff rates, as such. It is directed to eliminating a host of complicated, time-consuming, confusing and often contradictory provisions that have the effect of making the importation into this country of foreign products a more than usually difficult process.

Facilitated customs procedures and administration, it is believed, will aid Marshall Plan members and other countries to sell a larger volume of goods here and thus earn more dollars in order to balance their trade.

The Treasury Department has indicated that all improvements possible under its administrative control have been or are being accomplished. Anything more needs new legislation.

With the Treasury, the State Department and the Economic Cooperation Administration have been urging passage of the new measure.

Communist Deputy In Paris Assembly Denied Immunity

Paris, April 16 (NYHT).—French police jailed a Communist woman member of the National Assembly at Brest today when they denied her parliamentary immunity and charged her with assaulting Pierre Prevosto, a Brest contractor.

The arrest of Mme. Marie Lambert was believed to be the first case under the Fourth Republic's constitution in which a deputy was denied immunity by the police.

The contractor was forcibly removed from his home yesterday and taken to a meeting of the pro-Communist General Conferedation of Labor.

Twelve hundred strikers were said to have forced Prevosto to accompany them after a rally addressed by Mme. Lambert. The contractor was kept in the hall several hours against his will.

The strikers were trying to launch a general strike in the Brest region for Tuesday as a protest against the arrest.

Gen. Hurley, Mrs. Roosevelt Clash on Yalta

New York, April 16 (U.P.).—Patrick J. Hurley, former Ambassador to China, today blamed the fall of China to the Communists on the secret agreement at Yalta.

At Yalta, said the retired major general, American diplomats "surrendered all the principles of the Atlantic Charter" and handed Russia "the blueprint for the Communist conquest of China."

The fiery Hurley flung his charge on Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt's television program and the President's widow differed heatedly.

"We know from many things what were the main things we aimed at in Yalta and for you to ignore it, sir, is extraordinary," Mrs. Roosevelt said. "I just don't understand how you can ignore it."

Hurley denounced America's agreement at Yalta to restore to Russia lands that the Japanese took away from the Russian Czar in 1904.

"There's the blueprint for the Communist conquest of China," Hurley declared.

"But that doesn't include any part of China geographically," said Senator Warren G. Magnuson (D., Wash.) also on the program.

"You mean Dairen isn't in China?" snapped Hurley. "You mean Port Arthur isn't in China? Do you mean that all the Chinese race are not?"

"Yalta only gave Russia what she originally had," Magnuson said.

Hurley replied: "The Yalta secret agreement, which wasn't given to the Chinese and was not given to the American people, was the Communist blueprint for the conquest of China."

British Union's Criticism Forces Food Aide to Quit

London, April 16 (AP).—Stanley Evans, parliamentary secretary to Britain's Ministry of Food, resigned today.

His resignation followed on the heels of criticism by the National Farmers Union of a speech last Friday describing British agriculture as "privileged." The Farmers Union accused Evans of trying to drive a wedge between town and country.

Evans commented: "Now everyone can be happy. The NFU have my scalp under their belt, and a healthy, inquisitive public opinion will now have to assess the results of the coming farm price review negotiations."

Titoists Win Easy Victory In Trieste

Kopar, Trieste Free Territory, April 16 (U.P.).—The Trieste "People's Front," which supports Marshal Tito, won an easy victory today in parliamentary elections in the Yugaslav zone of Trieste.

Government officials announced tonight that incomplete returns showed at least 90 percent of the 42,000 eligible voters had cast ballots by 7 p. m.

The "Slovene-Italo Peoples' Front" had little opposition in the election for the "little parliament." Almost all the candidates were members of the front and the voting was more in the nature of a plebiscite.

A Kopar radio announcement that 90 percent of the voters had gone to the polls in that predominantly Italian Kopar province came after correspondents, in an unescorted tour of the zone, verified that barely 50 percent had voted by noon in the Kopar, Isola and Pirano districts.

The elections went off orderly with only isolated incidents reported. Some Italian newsmen claimed they had been beaten, stoned and insulted, but American newsmen could find no evidence to support their claim.

Lucas Predicts Senate Vote For Full Marshall Plan Fund

By The Associated Press

Senator Lucas of Illinois, the Democratic leader, yesterday predicted the Senate would beat down bipartisan efforts to cut Marshall Plan spending back to $2,500,000,000.

Before he left for weekend speeches in Illinois, Lucas said an informal check showed about 58 of the 96 Senators favor the full $3,100,000,000 authorization approved by the Senate Foreign Relations Committee.

Senator Wherry of Nebraska, the GOP floor leader, said in a separate interview that a group of Republicans probably would fight to cut the amount back to $2,500,000,000.

At the request of Senator Lodge (R., Mass.), a Foreign Relations Committee member who supports the full amount, Republican Senators plan to caucus sometime during the week to talk over the bill.

The House already has passed a $3,102,000,000 foreign aid bill authorizing a $2,850,000,000 outlay for Marshall Plan aid to western European nations; 100 million dollars for the China area, 100 million dollars for Korea, $27,450,000 for Arab refugees in Palestine, and 25 million dollars for President Truman's "Point Four" program of aiding backward areas of the world.

The Senate bill, besides boosting Marshall Plan aid handled by the Economic Cooperation Administration to $3,100,000,000, would increase the "Point Four" outlay to 45 million dollars.

Everything at Steak!

By Albert Parchey Mesirow

AN unkind critic asked us the other day, "Don't you ever have any really big people to write about in your column? Who wants to read about little people?" Just then, into our establishment walked Dr. Leon Gordon, M.D., B.A., M.A., Ph.D., F.A.C.P. The critic winced. "How's that for a really big man!" I gloated. Dr. Gordon tips the beam, when in training, at a trim 455 lbs. "I'm on a diet!" the popular physician to the Boxing Commission announced. "Gotta scale down a little. Getting so I can hardly do a toe dance any more!" Whereupon he ordered his famous high-protein salad, absolutely guaranteed to furnish nourishment without putting on fat. Here it is, published for the first time, and with Dr. Gordon's permission: Make a spicy sauce of tarragon vinegar, a pinch of salt, a dash of tabasco and half a clove of garlic, sliced very thin. In this, marinate plump, fine-grained "Garden-type" beets (the only kind Parchey's ever uses!), sliced. Drain and serve on crisp lettuce. This colorful dish adds zest and good flavor to the stringent diet and makes reducing, for that day, a pleasure! Try it.

If you're from Virginia, you know what a Stayman Winesap is . . . the juiciest, crispest, tastiest of all apples. And if you're also one of the many friends who have raved about our Deep Dish Apple Pie, you may have guessed that the Stayman Winesap is the only apple we use in making this ambrosial delicacy. Nothing else quite meets the standards of our Pastry Chef, Norman Presley, a man who knows his apples and his pie crusts. After they're pared, cored and sliced fine, Chef Presley adds mountains of sugar (better than a one-to-four proportion), a little mace, a dash of cinnamon and generous slabs of rich creamery butter. This delicious concoction then simmers (but never boils) for hours over a slow flame, until butter, sugar and rich apple juices blend together into a thick, pale gold sauce that fills the kitchen with an overpowering fragrance. Two days before, Chef Presley had laid aside his vegetable shortening to warm itself leisurely and naturally to room temperature. The day before, he had kneaded this, by hand, into a four-times-sifted quantity of Pillsbury's Best Flour, with sugar, salt and chilled water, to the smooth consistency of fine broadcloth; then put it into the refrigerator to re-set overnight. Now it comes out, as tender as a rose petal, as white as alabaster, as delicately flavored as a maiden's lips . . . and into the warm recess of our deep oven. When it emerges, the whiteness has become a rich gold; a light, flaky, unbelievably tender crust, under which the still simmering apples in their luscious juice yearn for the probing of your eager fork! Fit for a king? It's much too good for a king! Here is a dish fit only for those whose nostalgia takes them happily back to grandmother's old farm kitchen and the indescribable, delicious wonders that issued from the cavernous depths of her wood-heated oven! Just try our Deep Dish Apple Pie and see. The address: Parchey's, 19th Street at K, N.W.

Pastry Chef Norman Presley, inventor of Parchey's Deep Dish Apple Pie and the only one to whom its precious preparation is entrusted, is a veteran of the Air Forces. He was mess sergeant of the Officers' Mess at Freeman Air Field, Seymour, Indiana, and came to us still in his uniform, 5 years ago. Before going into the service, Chef Presley was a Chef at Walter Reed, and as such helped prepare the special food served to the late General Pershing. "Justice Byrnes, General Marshall and Mrs. Roosevelt were regular visitors to the old General," Chef Presley recalls. "And I saw them there often. But the times that the President himself called, I didn't happen to be around, so I never saw him!" Don't worry, Chef. If the President should happen in, we'll see to it that you serve him some of your Deep Dish Apple Pie in person!

Perfect prelude to our Deep Dish Apple Pie is one of Parchey's famous New York Sirloin Steaks . . . aged to the precise moment of flavor peak; cut plank-thick, dipped in a redolent sealing sauce and then broiled to your exact specifications! It comes to you crispy-brown, the thin edge of golden fat bubbling and crackling; tender, succulent beef at its mouth-watering best, its rich natural juices seeping from the delicately encrusted surface in tiny rivulets of tantalizing fragrance and surpassing flavor! Why not treat yourself to a Parchey steak tonight? Come to 19th St. at K, N.W. Be seein' you!

Eight D. C. Area Men Awarded Guggenheim Fellowships

Eight Washington area men, including Dr. Edwin G. Nourse, former chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, have been awarded John Simon Guggenheim fellowships, it was announced yesterday.

The group was part of 158 scholars and creative workers to receive a half million dollars from the foundation, which this year marks its twenty-fifth anniversary. In the quarter century, 2317 fellowships, totalling $5,350,000, have been distributed.

The local awards follow:

Dr. Nourse's project is "The advancement of his studies, and the diffusion of the results thereof, into the possibilities of developing an approach to dynamic stabilization of free enterprise within the structure of free government."

Dr. Nourse was associated with the Brookings Institution for 24 years, becoming vice president of the Institution in 1942. Prior to this he taught economics at several universities. He resigned from the President's Council of Economic Advisers last October.

Bray Hammond, economic historian, will prepare a history of banking in the United States and Canada, 1781-1937. He has been Assistant Secretary of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve Board for the past 20 years.

Dr. John Hope Franklin, professor of history at Howard University, will prepare a study of the reactions of Southern travelers to various aspects of Northern civilization, 1800-1860.

Dr. Kenneth Sanborn Pitzer, director, Division of Research, Atomic Energy Commission, will prepare a book on chemical applications of quantum and statistical mechanics.

Dr. Edward Wyllys Andrews, 4th, Division Chief, Central Intelligence Agency, will make studies of early Maya archeology in northern Yuacatan.

Dr. Herbert Friedmann, curator, Division of Birds, National Museum, will make studies of the parastic reproduction habits of the honey-guided and weaverbirds of Africa.

Dr. Charles Maurice Wiltse, biographer of John Caldwell Calhoun, will prepare the final volume of a three-book sequence on Calhoun.

Dr. George Winchester Stone, jr., professor of English, George Washington University, will prepare a calendar of dramatic performances in London, 1660-1800.

4 Marylanders Win Guggenheim Fellowships

Baltimore, April 16 (AP).—Four residents of Maryland have been selected for John Simon Guggenheim Memorial Fellowships. They are:

Howard Irving Chapelle, Cambridge naval architect and historian, for studies of the design of American sailing ships and other craft from Colonial times to 1820.

Dr. Samuel Robert Means Reynolds of Baltimore, a staff member of the Carnegie Institute of Washington, for studies of the physiology of the fetal circulation.

Dr. Lester Peter Kuhn, chemist, ballistics research laboratory, Aberdeen Proving Ground, for studies of the mechanism and scope of organic chemical reactions in sulphuric acid and of hydrogen bonding.

Dr. Philip Hartman, associate professor of mathematics, Johns Hopkins University, for investigation of the location and nature of the spectra of singular boundary value problems associated with second-order linear differential equations.

Fresh Cabbage Juice Suggested For Peptic Ulcers

Washington, April 17 — The above heading appeared in an (AP) newpaper article which reads as follows: A remarkable speedup in the healing of peptic ulcers when treated with new cabbage juice was reported today by a California scientist.

In the first test of its kind on human beings, 31 patients, some with ulcers of long standing, received the cabbage juice treatment. Each drank about a quart of juice daily. In 11 cases the ulcers disappeared in six to nine days, said the scientist. He reported the tests in California Medicine, an official journal. One case required 23 days of treatment.

The tests indicate, but do not prove, the scientist said, that raw cabbage juice contains an unidentified substance which plays "a specific role in the healing of peptic ulcers."

Pure fresh cabbage juice and other fresh vegetable juices may be had in Washington from the Vita Food Co., at 3040 14th st. nw., or at the C & O Food Store, 519 11th st. nw., CO. 2980.

Four-Day-Old Baby Unable To Eat Dies

A 4-day-old boy who had not been able to eat since birth died about 6 a. m. Sunday at Walter Reed Hospital of respiratory failure.

The infant, Robert A. Carriker, was the son of Lieut. Frederick D. Carriker, an Army medical officer stationed at Gorgas Hospital, Canal Zone. The boy, a twin, and his father were flown to Washington when it was discovered a few hours after the child's birth that he could not eat.

The child underwent a lengthy emergency operation Friday to connect his esophagus with his stomach. The esophagus, or tube by which food reaches the stomach, ended in a stump a short distance down from the throat, doctors found. The tube leading up from the stomach was attached to the windpipe.

The hospital said the operation was successful, and that death was due to the pneumonia which set in afterward.

Rabkin Plays New Sonata By Rorem

By Richard Keith

Bernice Rabkin, young New York pianist, featured a new sonata by Ned Rorem in her recital yesterday afternoon at the Phillips Gallery.

The sonata is a sensitively written miniature. Each movement concerns itself with a single melodic idea reiterated almost continuously in varying shapes and colors. The first movement is reminiscent of the Poulenc Perpetual Motions. The second is a juicy bit of pure romanticism, in spite of its dissonances, and the third is a curt little tarantella.

Miss Rabkin's careful, rather dry style of playing showed off to advantage in her first group of transcriptions from harpsichord music. Keeping everything clean and at a moderate tonal level, she succeeded in projecting this delicate music in its true proportions.

Schubert's Sonata in B Flat, which followed, is very long and difficult to hold together. It requires the seasoned insight of a Schnabel or Hess to put it over convincingly. Nevertheless there were moments of real beauty yesterday, particularly in the first and third movements.

Although Miss Rabkin's playing shows that she has studied the music carefully, it often suffers from a faulty sense of timing. Rapid passages sometimes were rushed so that she arrived at the end of a phrase before the pulse of the music did.

She has a fine sense of tonal control, of giving just the right importance to each melodic thread. This ability, together with her sound technique, gives her a solid foundaton on which to build a successful career.

What's So Funny About Stanley?

By Richard L. Coe

SOMETHING THAT NEVER fails to astound me about a performance of "A Streetcar Named Desire" is an apparent audience tendency to ally itself with Stanley Kowalski, the heroine's coarse, cruel brother-in-law.

Stanley's brutal behavior, which represents all the factors that have worn Blanche into the bundle of insanity she finally becomes, gets a kind of sympathetic laughter which suggests that the point of the play is totally missed. I've noticed it in several performances of the Gayety's current tenant and the cast tells me it's been going on for years across the country.

I don't think it lies in the playing, though a colleague has thoughtfully observed that audiences instinctively dislike Blanche from her first entrance, when she reaches for a couple of quick drinks. He points out that Playwright Tennessee Williams may well be at fault, that in letting us watch the gradual collapse of the heroine he allows too much sympathy for the scorned brother-in-law to enter the first act.

Because I was so engrossed—gradually so, not immediately taken in—when I first saw the play in New York during its first weeks, I didn't notice this attitude originally. But I noted it in Baltimore some weeks ago and here again the other evening. I'm told that during the split weeks across the country audience sympathy with Stanley's brutality was even more marked.

Inevitably, this brings up the question of audiences and, especially, movie audiences. So total has been the mismanagement of the leaders of the American theater that only a minute percentage of Americans still are permitted the habit of sensing the more subtle qualities of suggestive thought; they are, in brief, movie-broken and while they may be lured to "Streetcar" by its sensational publicity angles, they lose the very point of what the playwright is saying.

What About the Movie?

One wonders, then, what will be the result of Agent Charles K. Feldman's investment of $350,000 for movie rights to the play. He it was who purchased "The Glass Menagerie" for the screen for $150,000; that property has just been completed with Gertrude Lawrence in the Laurette Taylor role and word from the coast is that it's a splendid picture.

But surely "Streetcar" poses tremendous problems for screen adaptation. It seems most unlikely that the real reason for Blanche's initial crack-up, the neurosis of her first husband, will pass Breen office approval. Perhaps he will be made into an old drunkard, a more acceptable form of illness to the masses. But what about Stanley when he becomes a movie character? Will audiences continue to think he's a lovable, younger Wally Beery, admirable in his faithfulness to an old Army pal and in his scorn for his shattered sister-in-law.

At all events, the laughter is old familiar stuff to the cast of the Gayety's play. Ralph Meeker's Stanley reveals a growth of ability on the part of this young actor and a good word should be said for Jorja Curtright, who makes much of Stella's fine first act.

And it is greatly to the credit of Judith Evelyn that her well-controlled emotional power is strong enough, sure enough, to stop the laughs when it's vitally necessary to the play. Her peak moments are stirringly handled and when Jim Nolan, as Mitch, sits perfectly still (a difficult stage assignment) as Blanche tells him of her life, you're watching fine performing.

THE ITALIAN EMBASSY'S energetic, astute Signora Tarchiani has arranged a unique showing for "The Titan," the unusual biography of Michelangelo as seen through the works he left posterity. A special screening of the picture will be given at the embassy tomorrow evening with minimum contributions by each guest of $10 for the District's March of Dimes. The wife of the Italian Ambassador has made an effective diplomatic gesture, a boost for her own country and a charming gift to the capital city she temporarily calls home. Dr. Gabriele Paresce of the embassy can tell you more about the benefit.

CHIEF Natay-ethe-galth of the Navajo tribe and his wife, Pop Chalee, the Toas artist, will be in town tomorrow on a strange assignment. In honor of that "I'm an Indian, Too" number Betty Hutton will be doing in the movies' "Annie Get Your Gun," the chief will induct the town's drama reporters into his tribe. This corner, pressed for a name, did its best on short notice: We'll be Chief Squatting Bent-Ear.

BETTY TUCKER, sister of the movies' Forrest, vows her brother will be dashing back this way to watch her play "The Madwoman of Chaillot," of all things. The new Washington Repertory Theater group will present this, but can't set a date until the Martita Hunt-Estelle Winwood company closes in Chicago, at which time the play will land in the amateur fields. Betty's scared of playing that part and I don't for a minute blame her. Ethel Barrymore was, too.

THE PIX, by the way, has a bill that merits attention: "I Know Where I'm Going" and "Brief Encounter," two revivals worth reviving. Today seems to be the last of them.

TONIGHT brings Stan Kenton's 40-man band to Uline's. Some of the heppest modern bandsmen we know are in a great sweat about this one, vow you'll be able to hear the "Innovations in Modern Music" a mile away and that only the wise musicos will really know what's going on. June Christy's vocalist for this shindig which gets started at 8:30.

THE HAND OF DISCIPLINE: Clifton Webb, as Father Gilbreth, improves table manners in the family comedy, "Cheaper by the Dozen" beginning its second week at the Palace. Myrna Loy plays Mrs. Gilbreth of their children's amusing, lovable book

40 Out of 1000 in U. S. On Government Payroll

Forty out of every 1000 persons in the United States were employed by Federal, State and local governments last October, the Census Bureau said last night.

One-third of the public workers were on the Federal payroll.

The total number of Federal, State and local workers was 6,203,000 in October, which was about the same as last April. But it was a 3 percent increase over the October, 1948, level, the Census Bureau said.

Lee and Grant Meet At Appomattox Rites

and photographs, Grant and Lee approached in open cars from the last positions of the armies of North and South.

Marching from the west behind Grant were the red-and-blue clad precisionists of the Marine Corps Schools band, playing "The Battle Hymn of the Republic."

There were cheers and huzzahs, indicating the presence of visitors from north of the Mason-Dixon Line.

And from the east, where Lee's remnants once staggered by, came the full-dress cadet band of Virginia Military Institute, sounding a rousing "Dixie."

Dr. Freeman was introduced by roar with latter-day versions of the "Rebel Yell," indicating the presence of many Southern folk.

Then there was a tumultous up-Judge Joel W. Flood, of Appomattox, after Representative Watkins M. Abbitt (D., Va.) had opened the program.

In somber tones, Dr. Freeman traced the battles and bloodshed that preceded the appearance of a defeated but unbowed man in the second-floor west wing of the McLean house on April 9, 1865.

It was at Sayler's Creek on April 7 that Lee asked his staff, "has my army been dissolved?" "and well he might have thought so," said Dr. Freeman.

In the second row of the overflowing audience, a wizened old lady wearing a red rose corsage took out her handkerchief. In front of the stand, a photographer snapped two 5-year-old boys who stood in awe at the flag, microphones and dignitaries.

It was "the greatest army that ever had been raised in America" that was relinquished by Lee, said Dr. Freeman, after the general had told his men who wanted to renew the fight: "No, you young fellows can go bushwacking if you will. But for me, there is nothing for me to do but go to General Grant and take the consequences of my acts."

Virginia's noted historian was flanked by a faded, tattered and bullet-shred remnant of the Stars and Bars—used by the Sixty-first Virginia Regiment "in all major battles after 1862." Dr. Freeman will present it to McLean House when he dies, he announced.

He paid Grant the supreme compliment when he spoke of his attitude at the peace table: "Lee would have been no more considerate, no more flawlessly the gentleman than Grant." But "how Lee held back the tears" while his brave men wept, Dr. Freeman could not explain.

"I've Done the Best for You . . ."

He merely quoted the southerner's announcement of his decision: "Men, I've done the best for you I know how to do."

Dr. Freeman drew applause when he said "thank God" that Grant's descendants have proved worthy of their "family vigor"—a son and a grandson, "both general officers in the United States Army."

Virginia's Gov. John S. Battle looked upon the ceremonies as commemorating "not the close of an internal war, but the real beginning of a firmly united Nation which was envisioned by our first President."

He quoted another famous Virginian, Washington, who said in his farewell address:

"The name of America, which belongs to you, in your national capacity, must always exalt the just pride of patriotism more than any appellation derived from local discrimination."

Senator Virgil M. Chapman (D., Ky.) said that the "principal lessons" to be learned from Appomattox history are "Grant's superb magnanimity in victory and Lee's sublime equanimity."

A bright sun flooded a cloudless sky throughout the afternoon, a day in which the little-known Wilmer McLean, an Alexandria merchant, was honored as well as his visitors of 1865 for having provided his parlor as a scene of peace.

(Present were his three granddaughters: Mrs. Leonidas Triplett of Arlington; Mrs. John Quynn of Frederick, Md., and Mrs. Bruce Campbell of Lutherville, Md.)

Spicers Reach 60th Wedding Anniversary

ELDER AND MRS. SPICER
. . . Wed for 60 Years

Elder William A. Spicer, former president of the General Conference of Seventh Day Adventists, and Mrs. Spicer will observe their sixtieth wedding anniversary today at their home, 606 Carroll ave., Takoma Park, Md.

"We will spend it quietly, as people over 80 ought to do," said Elder Spicer yesterday. "We have had a lot of birthdays and anniversaries, you know."

Elder Spicer, 84, and Mrs. Spicer, 85, first met at the Seventh Day Adventist headquarters in Battle Creek, Mich. They were married in London, where he was working on an English religious paper at the time.

A pioneer Adventist missionary to India, where one of the Adventist colleges is named for him, Elder Spicer has spent 67 of his 84 years as a missionary or in visiting Adventist missions. He retired in 1940.

He was president of the General Conference from 1922 to 1930.

Elder Spicer was born in Freeborn County, Minn., but grew up in Pontiac, Mich. Mrs. Spicer is a native of Owosso, Mich. They had made their home in Takoma Park since 1903.

They have three children: William H. Spicer, M.D., of 901 S. 21st st., Arlington; Dorothy, wife of John N. Andrews, M.D., of 9601 Colesville rd., Silver Spring, and Mrs. Helen Spicer Menkel, of Denver, Colo.

1000 Attend DAR Memorial

Bandmen's School, will begin with the colorful entrance of the national officers escorted by pages with State flags.

Mrs. O'Byrne will speak on "Achievement."

Hill, the chief speaker, will be guest of honor at a reception given by Mr. and Mrs. Clark B. Roberts and Mr. and Mrs. Adolph P. Bucuor from 6 to 8 p. m. in the Hotel Mayflower's Pan American Room.

Among those expected to attend are the Assistant to the President and Mrs. John R. Steelman, and Undersecretary of the Navy and Mrs. Dan A. Kimball.

Texas members of the DAR will honor Mrs. Edwin Stanton Lammers, recording secretary general and candidate for president general, with a tea from 4 to 6 p. m. for members of the national board and friends. The tea, an invitation affair, will be held in the hotel's ballroom.

Mrs. James B. Patton, first vice president general and candidate for the top office, will be guest of honor at an informal reception in the Mayflower's Chinese Room immediately after the opening session in Constitution Hall tonight. The reception will be given by Mrs. Patton's fellow Ohian, Mrs. Lowell Fletcher Hobart, and associated hostesses for all delegates and members of the DAR.

The contest between Mrs. Patton and Mrs. Lammers, both of whom have long been prominent in DAR activities, is regarded as one of the closest races in the history of the society.

Logrolling Slows Drive

leadership huddle until Republicans had a chance to sound out economy sentiment "back home."

Counter Drive Expected

What Martin's Republicans will report was not disclosed last night, but one Democratic leader said the long delay in passing the bill has given agencies and interests hit by committee cuts a chance to organize a counter drive.

"We can be dead sure of one thing," this Democratic source said. "Every member who went home, and has a project in his district, will come back here asking for that project. He'll come back for economy, of course, but insist there is room for his projects."

Before Congress went home, Republican demands for economy had largely concentrated on Federal personnel. Representative John Taber (R., N. Y.) said he hoped to save a billion dollars by barring filling of Federal vacancies in all but a few agencies in the next fiscal year.

Cannon meanwhile announced he will shortly call a meeting of the Appropriations Committee in an effort to add foreign aid chapter to the bill before the omnibus measure clears the House.

Funds for the Economic Cooperation Administration, Point Four, Korea and China aid could not be included in the bill the committee originally reported, as the foreign aid authorization had not cleared either House.

Subsequently the House voted to authorize $3,042,000,000 for foreign aid in a single-package measure and Senate leaders are trying to speed Senate clearance of that.

Until the authorization reaches the White House and is signed by the President, Cannon said, any aid funds included in the omnibus bill by the House will be subject to a point of order.

Whether or not the Senate acts in time, he said, he will try to add the foreign aid chapter to the House measure, on the chance that no one will interpose a point of order.

Indications were it may take the House two weeks or more to pass the big money bill, the first pooled appropriation measure of its kind in recent history.

House debate will open Tuesday on the legislative chapter of the bill, under an agreement to limit the talk on each of the 11 chapters to two hours.

No voting is planned on the first day. Cannon said he hopes merely to conclude the two hours of general debate before the House adjourns early to attend the Washington baseball season opener at Griffith Stadium.

1950 Paul Revere

Resorting to pageantry, the home-rule forces will send their "Paul Revere" on a ride down F st. on Tuesday, the 175th anniversary of the Revolutionary hero's ride through the night. They are acting not a moment too soon, for it is common knowledge that the enrollment of Congressmen on the petition for discharge of the home-rule bill from the House District Committee has seriously slowed down. We do not think for a moment that the petition has the signatures of all those who favor home rule in the District. But some members of Congress are not satisfied to know that a bill is right in principle and sound in approach. They want to feel also that there is a powerful public demand for a measure before they are willing to sign a petition to take it away from a recalcitrant committee. It is for these men that "Paul Revere" will ride.

This voteless community ought to remember, however, that "Paul Revere" is to ride on F st.—not through the halls of Congress. Not many Congressmen, if any, will be on F st. to hear the clang of hoofs on the pavement or to read the horseman's signal: "Taxation Without Representation Is Still Tyranny!" If that message is to be heard with proper effect in Congress, it will have to resound through the city and be reechoed on Capitol Hill throughout the coming weeks.

It is for this purpose that "Paula Revere" representing the Voteless League of Women Voters will accompany the messenger who rides for freedom and self-government. Their mission will be to distribute literature on home rule and to inform citizens how they can contribute financially to the cause. Originally it was planned to have the "Paulas" distribute home-rule buttons and accept contributions. But in his report to the Commissioners on the subject, Major Barrett, the superintendent of police, said that "the collection of contributions on the streets would be in violation of the regulations unless the Commissioners expressly grant the committee that privilege." Every Washingtonian knows that other organizations representing worthy causes are permitted to collect contributions on the streets. But since only freedom and the basic right of self-government are at stake, the Commissioners deny that privilege to the home-rule movement.

This story ought to be told in Congress. The present paternalistic system operates not only to deprive nearly a million Americans of the right to govern themselves but also toward suppression of the movement for redress of grievances. It is time indeed for "Paul Revere" to ride, and he ought to keep on riding until the city is aroused out of the lethargy that 75 years of political impotence have fastened upon it.

Kerr Bill Veto

In his message vetoing the Kerr bill President Truman convincingly refuted the argument that Federal regulation of independent producers of natural gas would be an unwarranted invasion of the field of private enterprise. He pointed out that a preponderant proportion of our natural gas reserves is owned by a few large oil companies, that demands for natural gas have been growing phenomenally, and that distributors and purchasers of gas cannot move from one producer to another in search of lower prices. Consequently, buyers are forced to pay whatever the suppliers of natural gas choose to charge in the absence of effective competition among the latter.

By removing so-called independent producers from regulatory supervision, therefore, the Kerr bill would have opened the door to consumer price-gouging, and the FPC would have been unable to prevent it. The President also exposed the flimsiness of the argument that regulation of producers' prices, or rather the right to regulate such prices, would discourage exploration and development of new wells. Such reasoning, he explains, assumes that the FPC cannot be trusted to apply regulatory standards suited to the special needs of the industry.

With Democrats from the oil-and-gas-producing States lined up in favor of the Kerr bill and many Republicans from States where consumer interests are dominant opposing the bill, there has been a good deal of speculation about the political effect of the presidential veto. Some cynical commentators had predicted that the President would sign the bill in order to curry favor with powerful special interests that make heavy contributions to Democratic campaign funds. Others, equally cynical, had maintained that he would veto the bill rather than give political enemies an opportunity to capitalize on his indorsement of special interest legislation opposed by trade unions and consumer groups. While it would be naive to assume that the President did not consider the political consequences of his decision, his veto message shows that he weighed and decided the issue on its merits. Enactment of the bill, as he pointed out, would certainly not have been in the national interest.

Defense Of The West

Ever since the meeting of the Atlantic Pact defense chiefs at The Hague, the criticism has been current that Western defense preparations so far are mostly paper. It is true that the task of the chiefs of staff is not so much to mobilize for the present as to plan soundly for the future. According to General Bradley, what has been done is to work out a blueprint, both over-all and regional, and to facilitate the exchange of information. Nevertheless, the lack of more positive steps toward division of labor in armament industry and a supra-national western European force under an integrated command is disheartening. Nothing could be more foolhardy than to place our faith in an illusion—an illusion of cooperation that does not exist. If the present plan for planning is to mean anything, it will depend upon the promptness with which the nations of Europe accept a genuine division of labor and place their military resources in a common pool.

In his speech Friday in Chicago, General Bradley set the tone, albeit in cautious terms. He said:

> . . . Traditions will have to give way to reality. And even our own balance of United States forces—if we expand beyond the present levels—may have to give way to the theory of national specialization, which will fit into an over-all balance for collective defense.

Indeed, the "may have to give way" ought to be "must"; that is clearly what is expected of Europe in the military aid program passed by Congress. Something of the sort has been proposed by the Netherlands chief of staff, Gen. Hans J. Kruls. He asserts the need of a central authority "to tell members what forces they must contribute and to assure a balancing of the services" within the pact. He envisions a financial pool into which each nation would pay a fixed portion of its budget. Further, he says:

> The Atlantic Pact must eventually develop a command organization . . . Of course, it would mean a restriction of national sovereignties, but that is the direction in which we must move.

How much of an illusion the plans could turn out to be is illustrated by the case of France. She is counted upon to contribute 24 of the 36 Atlantic Pact divisions by 1955; yet 10 of her divisions are embroiled in a colonial war in Indo-China—a war with no early end in sight and for which she would like to have the United States pick up the check. Tactical aviation from Britain, certainly an essential in halting any Russian advance, is barely sufficient to defend Britain herself. In any true division of labor Belgium, for example, would contribute not troops but munitions. What is necessary is some instrumentality to galvanize the Europeans into thinking in over-all terms. Incidentally, such unification of effort also has political implications: only in a western European force can the problem of German defense be contained.

It goes without saying that the United States must expect to contribute not only military forces — now represented in the German occupation—but also money. Certainly if western Europe is not to present a vacuum to Russia, everything must be done to encourage the Europeans to defend themselves. But the first criterion of sound defense is the assurance that the plans are realistic and that money is productively spent. It is time for action to supplant talk. Before any thought is given to long-term American financial commitments, it is up to the Europeans themselves to show that they take their defense seriously enough to get together.

Pork Barrel V. Economy

Senator Douglas' campaign to slice 840 million dollars from the bill authorizing expenditures for flood control and rivers and harbors projects is off to a bad start. Every one of his numerous proposals for eliminating minor authorizations was rejected following impassioned protests from Senators whose pet projects were jeopardized. Although Mr. Douglas pointed out that the Budget Bureau had objected to some of these projects and given others a very low priority rating, his appeals for economy fell on deaf ears. One outraged Senator declared that a request to strike out a little $14,000 item was a "case of Don Quixote charging windmills."

Unlike the bewildered knight, however, Mr. Douglas has no illusions about the nature of the opposition that he faces in his battle to reduce pork-barrel expenditures. "I know only too well," he said, "what we (the economy advocates) are up against. Local groups demand that their Representatives and Senators bring home the 'bacon' or else. All too often these groups loudly proclaim their desire for economy, but at the same time they want their local pet projects at the Federal Government's expense. They want economy practiced on the other fellow, but not on themselves."

Senator Douglas appealed not only to his colleagues but also to the public to support his economy campaign. He believes that politicians underestimate the willingness of their constituents to put the national interest first, even if it means postponement of public improvements that would benefit their communities. It is the greedy special interest groups, not the voting masses, that bring pressure to bear on their representatives to vote for spending projects that should be eliminated or postponed in view of the unbalanced state of the Federal budget.

Probably not a single dollar will be cut from the pending rivers and harbors bill, as a result of the Douglas economy drive. But the Senator's efforts will be worthwhile, if he does no more than create doubts in the minds of his colleagues as to the political advantages of voting for spending projects that place local needs and desire above the national interest.

Baltic Mystery

While we await further details relating to the incident of the naval plane shot down by the Russians somewhere in Baltic area, with a loss of 10 American lives, we think it appropriate to recall a passage from the article by Mr. George F. Kennan of the Department of State, published in a recent issue of the Reader's Digest, and reprinted in this newspaper, last February 26.

> Considerations of prestige, and the natural nervousness which surrounds the use of armed forces anywhere, mean that nations can become involved in wars accidentally. The risk is perhaps less than it used to be; people . . . have calmer nerves than they used to have in dealing with explosive incidents . . . Still, when you have military forces operating in such close physical proximity and such complex conditions as our forces and the Russian forces . . . there is always a danger of incidents . . . War can occur because the Russians may think someone is going to attack them . . . The fact that this is nonsense doesn't make it any less serious . . . We can never be entirely sure that [the secret police] will not some day succeed . . . in convincing themselves and their masters that a capitalist attack is imminent. . . .

Mr. Kennan's view is confirmed by the public reaction to the Baltic incident. The incident is far more serious in its implications than the shooting down of American planes by Marshal Tito's fliers, yet it has given rise to no such outbursts of anger and indignation. Nor has there been any such excitement as was provoked by the bombing and sinking of the American gunboat Panay in the Yangtze River in December, 1937, although in that case the Japanese government apologized for the incident, promised to pay indemnities and to punish those responsible. In contrast to the Japanese attitude, the Russians have boasted of their work and have even decorated the flier who is said to have hit the American plane.

Here, then, is a gratifying example of what Mr. Kennan means by "cool nerves" in a crisis. Nobody yet, outside of official circles, knows precisely what the episode means. The Russian and American accounts can be reconciled only by supposing that the plane went some hundreds of miles out of its course, and then returned in its crippled condition to its course before the crew made an effort to abandon it. Here in the United States, however, the wife of the copilot of the missing plane told the United Press of a letter written by her husband just before the flight in which he mentioned a "secret mission" to which he had been assigned.

Apart from the curious indiscretion of such a letter this story does not make much sense either. Assuming that the "secret mission" was actually secret reconnaissance of the Russian fortifications at the Libau naval base in Latvia, it seems altogether strange that a huge four-engined bomber would have been dispatched for such a purpose.

Thus the affair remains enveloped in a good deal of mystery, which we hope the promised statement by Secretary Acheson will serve to dispel. In the meantime, the part of wisdom is to remain watchful but calm.

Free World Committee

Secretary Acheson's top-level Strategy Committee is another important reorganization step toward mobilizing brain power for direction of the cold war. The committee is said to have been assigned the task of determining how the economic, political and psychological resources of the United States can best be brought to bear upon the American-Soviet conflict. Instead of merely trying to meet the crises arising from Russian maneuvers in various parts of the world, the Strategy Committee will attempt to take the initiative in buttressing the position of the free world. With this function lifted from the shoulders of the State Department's Policy Planning Staff, the latter agency will be able to give its full attention to long-range planning.

But in our opinion, unity of effort on a still higher level is needed. As we understand Secretary Acheson's idea of "total diplomacy," it is to bring all the wisdom and strength of the Nation to bear upon our one great international problem. This seems to call for a body of the wisest statesmen in the land—not merely within the State Department—to offer advice on the course that our policy should take. Of course, it would not be concerned with day-to-day direction of cold-war strategy, but with such questions as the ultimate making of peace, the economic and political integration of the free world, the nature and scope of the aid that the United States should give to countries struggling to maintain their freedom, and policy revision when pacts call for them.

It is at this level where leadership is most conspicuously lacking, as Senator Vandenberg recently pointed out. We ought to be thinking boldly and globally, and that seems to be possible only if the best minds in America are brought together to lead the way. The initiative in this sphere must come, of course, from the President, but the fact that the Secretary of State is adjusting his organization to the realities of the world situation should quicken the President's awareness of the need for action on the higher level.

Inter-American Aid

A good deal of nonsense is being talked about the Point IV Plan. One wonders, however, how much of the discussion is informed and how many of those advocating the plan have enough background to ask even some of the more important questions about it.

According to the press, the Economic and Social Council of the Organization of American States has recommended "$2,600,000 participation" in the technical aid program, with especial emphasis on augmented assistance to the Inter-American Institute of Agricultural Sciences. How many of the people supporting these programs realize that only 9 of the 20 countries of Latin America have ratified the agreement to support the institute, and that of these 9, several are in arrears in their annual payments?

When the countries of Latin America do not care enough about this institute to make modest contributions, why should this burden be added to that of the American taxpayers? In these days of billion-dollar deficit financing perhaps $2,600,000 seems insignificant, but when, as The Washington Post reports, Washington's "Harris Family" has to feed and clothe itself on $13.33 apiece next month because of cuts in District relief, perhaps we should give more thought to the place of charity at home.

Council-Manager for D. C.

As Washington is about to join in a "Salute to Freedom" as the formal opening of its sesquicentennial, it is disheartening to find that a part of the civic leadership of the city is pushing its efforts to block the most promising chance to restore one American freedom which Washington has lacked for the last half of the 150 years we are now celebrating. I refer, of course, to local self-government, such as the Senate voted to give us through the Kefauver bill, which certain strategically placed Congressmen have so far prevented the House from having a chance to pass also.

These local citizens who claim to favor home rule but not in the form most immediately obtainable, are adept in imagining how things could go wrong and in soft-pedaling the fact that other cities have made them go right under plans of council-manager government very similar to the one proposed here.

The anti-Kefauver bill leaflet put out by the Board of Trade starts out with the argument that—without denying the demonstrable fact that the Kefauver bill would confer on the District Council the power to take action on a wider scope of local legislation than any municipality in a State enjoys—Congress would still continually interfere by direct local legislation or by vetoing (within 45 days) the acts of the council. Since a chief complaint heretofore has been that Congress, because of its preoccupation with national matters, fails to act or is too slow in acting on District affairs, are we to suppose that the enacting of the Kefauver bill would galvanize Congress into insistent and speedy use of the powers of ultimate control?

The only alternative offered by the opponents of the Kefauver bill is representation of the District in Congress. Is it meant that such representatives (including a District Senator or two, we hope), by the confidence of their much more numerous colleagues from the States, or perhaps by log-rolling maneuvers, would be allowed to exercise in effect the powers which the Kefauver bill, in much more regular and open fashion, would confer on a District Council? That would be a very makeshift sort of home rule.

No direct action by Congress on current District affairs, even with our full share of representation in that Congress, would be local self-government for us. The only way is for Congress to set up an elective local governing body and let it do its work. The retention of Congress' ultimate control, seldom exercised, would not interfere with essential home rule.

Snorkel Origin

In connection with your article of April 10, on the performance of the United States submarine Pickerel, equipped with a "snorkel," I should like to correct your statement in the last paragraph:

"The snorkel was developed by the Germans toward the end of World War II—too late to play a major role in U-boat raids on Allied shipping. Both the United States and Russian navies have copied and presumably attempted to improve on the German development."

In fact, the snorkel was invented by Commander J. J. Wichers, Netherlands Royal Navy, around 1935, and from the end of 1938, all new Netherlands submarines were equipped with this device.

The United States Navy was in a position to take notice of the snorkel (or "snuiver" as it was called then) when H. N. M. submarine "O-19" visited Coco Solo and Pearl Harbor toward the end of 1939, but no real interest was shown at that time.

In May, 1940, during the German invasion of the Netherlands, four snorkel-equipped submarines managed to escape to British ports, where the device was dismantled under pressure of the British Admiralty, for strategic and technical reasons. The remaining submarines with snorkel devices, still under construction in Netherlands shipyards, were all scuttled but salvaged by the Germans afterward.

They immediately began introducing the copied snorkel-equipment on their own U-boats.

Serious further work on snorkels by the Allies started only after they learned the hard way about the value of the device. Fortunately volume production of snorkel U-boats by the Germans was achieved too late to affect the course of the war.

McCarthy's Damage

Since Senator McCarthy has been unable to prove his claims, it is time to assess the damage he has done. First, by the recklessness of his charges, he has caused extreme personal discomfort to a number of hard-working, loyal public servants. Second, by the venom of his denunciations, he has given aid and comfort to the enemies of democracy who seek to sow seeds of hate and distrust. Third, by the violence of his accusatons, he has fanned flames of bitterness which put a heavy strain on the fabric of our democratic pattern of free discussion. This Nation can ill afford any Joe McCarthys.

"Swimming Pools"

Your editorial of April 10 attacking Secretary of the Interior Oscar Chapman for his stand in the present swimming pool controversy is unfair and against the best interests of the Nation's Capital. You accuse Mr. Chapman of being arbitrary because he insists the six swimming pools under the control of the Department of the Interior be operated on a nonsegregated basis.

The Washington Post is constantly inveighing against various forms of cruelty and abuse of the human race in other parts of the world. Unfortunately, in this instance, you do not champion the cause of the oppressed with the same vigor when the injustice takes place on your front doorstep. It is extremely late in world affairs to expect that the Secretary of the Interior or any important department of Government should turn over Federal property to those who would operate it on a basis of segregation and discrimination.

Your editorial states that the action of the Department of Interior places it in the position of imposing a policy upon the community contrary to the better judgment of the local officials. Even if we assume that the attitude of the Board of Recreation officials represents the best judgment of that body, this is no reason why the Federal Government should attempt to administer its policies and properties in accordance with an undemocratic pattern.

CLARENCE MITCHELL.
Washington Representative, National Association for the Advancement of Colored People.

The Interior Department has no choice but to maintain the pools on an unsegregated basis. It is an arm of the Federal Government, a Government founded on a body of law which explicitly provides for equal rights and privileges for all citizens regardless of race.

To those who have persuaded themselves that "separate but equal" is a valid democratic concept it should be stated that separate but equal would not be applicable to these swimming pools. The Anacostia pool, for instance, is the only public pool in the Southeast section; one racial group cannot be denied its use without discrimination.

Arnold Bus Strike

Many months ago the State of Virginia seized the Washington, Virginia & Maryland (Arnold) bus line to prevent interruption of service as threatened by the current strike actions proposed by personnel. Since then it is assumed the State of Virginia has been busy trying to line up the owners of the bus line with their personnel to avert such a strike.

Now the State Corporation Commission has seen fit to implement a fare increase granted by the Interstate Commerce Commission by increasing the zone fares within Virginia at the rate of 5 cents per zone. These actions seem arbitrary indeed as it is the first time that a State sovereignty has: (1) actually operated the business concerned, (2) acted as mediator between the owners of the business and their employes and, (3) directly assessed the very public they represent for the purpose of avoiding a strike they, with all their time and so-called effort, could not mediate successfully.

If such actions are legally sound—and this writer questions their soundness—a sovereign State is possessed with powers that certainly cannot be classed as in agreement with the provisions of the Constitution of these United States. The actions taken should be presented to the highest courts in the land for a decision as to their legality.

Tito

BELGRADE. The experience of meeting Marshal Tito has its surprises, even for an observer jaded by too numerous encounters with politicians. Here is the leader of a legendary national resistance, chief of an iron dictatorship, former servant of the Kremlin who has defied his masters. A certain measure of theatrics seems to be in order.

Instead, you find that Tito is a brisk, compact man, in hard physical training, pleasant mannered, pointed in his talk, with no trace of grandiose affectation. Incidentally, his photographs gravely belie him.

The setting is discordant—Tito's villa is one of the gloomily elaborate monstrosities, rather like a movie set of the 1920s that the rich people of Belgrade formerly inhabited. But the background of bulbous furniture and bewildering lighting fixtures is entirely dominated by Tito himself—the rather short man in a neat business suit, speaking with a quiet voice in rapid expository bursts, who somehow manages to convey the impression that he has been forged and hardened in successive fires.

FROM SUCH an inevitably general conversation with the heads of states, the observer obtains at best only a sort of feeling about the man and his role. Perhaps the best way to sum up the feeling produced by an hour with Marshal Tito is to say it is a feeling of hope.

This does not mean for a moment that Tito's Yugoslavia is a happy land, or that the system in force here is to be admired by our standards. On the contrary, means have rarely been so ruthlessly subordinated to ends.

The dictator-state has gathered all power into its hands. The mass of the people are called upon to make the most grinding sacrifices. This is a Communist society in the first and hardest stage of its evolution. It is true that Yugoslavia, under daily attack by the Kremlin, could hardly preserve her independence without harsh use of state power. But it is also true that Tito's whole training in the international Communist underground must have imbued him with a willingness to use state power harshly, whenever necessary or expedient.

The unexpected feeling of hope that Tito inspires derives, rather, from the sense that this same stern training somehow failed in another respect. It evidently did not stamp out of Tito all respect for warm human values. Or it may be, he recaptured this respect for human values in his years in the woods, fighting side by side with ordinary men and women of his country.

At any rate, no one who talks to Tito can feel that his aim is to create the "Nineteen Eighty-Four"-like society, drab, sad, infinitely hopeless, bleakly uniform, over which the Kremlin presides.

He rejects the classical Kremlin system of making omelets without any regard whatever for the number of human eggs broken in the process. Innumerable human eggs have been and are being broken here in Yugoslavia, there is no doubt about that. Yet the attitude is wholly different from the Russian attitude. There is none of that cold disinterest, that actual hinted pleasure in seeing life stamped out, that in the Soviet Union has sent whole nations into slavery or condemned them in mass to death.

Tito wants a better life for his people as soon as his system can afford it, and when life grows better, he means it to be more varied and above all more free. Furthermore, his desire to end the period of most acute sacrifice for the Yugoslav masses is about to produce a serious problem for the American Government. He himself has said nothing on this subject. But unless all signs deceive, the Yugoslav government is about to ask Washington for more generous and regular aid, even sufficient to give the Yugoslav people more supplies of direly needed consumer goods.

For us, this problem will have double importance. In the first place it will be significant and valuable to discover whether Tito's Yugoslavia can genuinely evolve in the direction of greater generosity and human freedom, as Tito and his comrades certainly desire. In the second place, there is a hard American self-interest in the two other themes, besides betterment of his people's lives, which also dominate Tito's discussion of his plans and hopes. One of these themes is Tito's absolute determination to maintain Yugoslavia's independence in the face of the Kremlin's worst threat. The other is the possibility of ending the cold war, if Yugoslavia's example can induce the Communist Parties of western Europe and the Communist governments of eastern Europe to cast off their slavish subjection to Soviet imperialism.

IN OUR very different society, we may not think that the replacement of Stalinism with Titoism in France and Italy, and the appearance of governments like Yugoslavia's in Poland and Czechoslovakia, will be the ideal outcome. Yet Tito is right on the essential point. This is the easiest way to end the cold war.

In this dangerous and perhaps doomed world of the era after the second world war, the only salvation is to face plain facts plainly. One of these plain facts that must be faced is the vast strategic importance of Yugoslavia to the whole confederation opposing Soviet aggression. And the lesson of Tito is that this new Yugoslavia, whatever else it may be, is a good strategic and political investment for those who want cold war victory.

"Neutralized Germany"

THE IDEA of a "neutralized Germany" has come in recently for discussion in many countries, and has been subjected to impressive criticism by the Times and the Economist in Britain, by the New York Herald Tribune and The Washington Post over here. We live and learn, and one among many things I have learned from this discussion is that whatever the merits of the idea, "neutralization" is a confusing name for it.

Lippmann

NAME for what idea? A very large part of the comment, both pro and con, is an argument as to whether an agreement could or should be reached now with the Russians to neutralize Germany. I realize now that the word "neutralization" was misleading because it has conveyed the notion that such an agreement with the Russians is possible. I do not think it is possible for the four powers to impose an agreed settlement on the German nation.

Yet I think also that the German nation will somehow play a very great role in Europe, and that we must try to discern and describe the role which the Germans can play, may play, and should be encouraged to play. Admitting that neutrality is a poor name for that role, I wish I could think of some better name which conveys the idea that the Germans will struggle to reunite; that reunited they cannot without catastrophic consequences to themselves and the world enter either military coalition; and that their vital interests and their historic traditions lie in a middle course between East and West.

THE TIMES (London) has described this as the "unorthodox" view of German policy. This is true enough in the sense that it is not at present the official view of the Western governments. But it is important to remember that the American Government was not converted until 1947 to what is today the official and orthodox view of Germany. Before that the orthodox and official view was that all of Germany should be disarmed and demilitarized (which means of course neutralized) for at least a generation. This was the thesis of Senator Vandenberg's famous speech in 1945 and of the Byrnes draft treaty offered to the Council of Foreign Ministers in April, 1946.

The original policy was abandoned when Secretary Marshall came to the conclusion after fruitless negotiations with M. Molotov that the four powers could not reach an agreement to impose such a settlement on Germany. I have no doubt he was right that no such settlement could have been imposed on Germany by agreement of the four powers.

THE NEXT phase brought the establishment of two German governments—the one a satellite of Russia and the other a dependency of the Western allies. The crucial question today is whether these two Germanys can coexist. I do not believe they can coexist and I believe that the struggle for German unity will dominate the whole European scene until it is resolved. Yet I agree with the Economist that German unity cannot be "negotiated into existence as a possible alternative to the present state of division."

My own view is that the official western view of Germany, which the Economist expresses so effectively, seriously underestimates the vitality, the rising power, and the national ardor of the German nation. And so, believing that two Germanys cannot coexist, believing also that the unity of Germany cannot be negotiated into existence by the occupying powers, it seems to me most probable that in the next phase we shall see a German national movement to unite the country and to liberate it from occupation and to restore the greatness of the German nation. I do not believe that a people which conquered the whole of Europe and so nearly became the masters of the world can be reduced to a satellite and a dependency.

IF IT is true that the national forces inside Germany will become dominant over those Germans who now accept the status quo of the partition, then the supreme question is what is to be the role of the new Germany. That question has to be answered. It is the fashion to believe that there are only two answers: that the New Germany will turn either to the West or to the East. My own view is that in the age of atomic weapons, neither of these two courses is open to the German nation, and that the Germans are bound to seek a third and different course.

For in the atomic age there is no way in which the concentrated industrial population of Germany can be defended. Allied with the Russians the Germans would make themselves the first and the perfect target of the strategic air forces of the West. Allied with the West they would be the first and the perfect target of Soviet atomic weapons. It seems to me certain that in the rising German national movement, military men will play, as they always do in such movements, especially in Germany, a leading part. I do not see how they can fail to draw the obvious conclusion from the strategic vulnerability of Germany, and to seek security and advantage in the middle position.

A MIDDLE position, when it is taken by a great power,—and Germany is a great power—is not, as so many seem to think, ineffectual and unimportant. It is said that the Russians will not permit the Germans to take such a course. But how can they prevent it, except by going to war to suppress the German national movement as it forms on its protected base in western Germany and infiltrates the eastern zone? The Russians cannot prevent the national revival of Germany.

Neither can we. The best we can hope to do is to influence the German national revival, and perhaps to guide it, into a course which is compatible with the peace of the world.

Virginia's Senators Will Fight FEPC

Virginia's Senators say they are ready to speak at length against a Fair Employment Practices bill whenever it comes up.

President Truman has asked that a foreign aid measure be called up ahead of FEPC and the Democratic policy committee has agreed.

Senator Byrd and Senator Robertson, Virginia Democrats, said in separate interviews the delay in FEPC consideration will not affect the fight planned by its foes.

Both contend the proposal is unconstitutional and undesirable.

Lucas Foresees 82d Congress Under Democrats

NYHT News Service

The Democratic floor leader of the Senate predicted yesterday that his party will win control of the Eighty-second Congress.

Senator Scott W. Lucas (Ill.), predicted in a radio interview that the lagging second session of the Eighty-first Congress will wind up with a good legislative record, including repeal or reduction of many wartime excise taxes and expansion of Social Security coverage.

Admitting that Republicans usually make gains and the Democrats lose in off years, Lucas added: "I am under the impression that will not happen in this off year. I have never known a time when Democrats were so interested in registering their voters."

P. R. In The Lodge, Gossett Amendment

By Lucius Wilmerding, Jr.

SENATOR Lodge has recently taken me to task for asserting that the Lodge-Gossett amendment, changing the mode of electing the President and Vice President, is based on the principle of proportional representation. He says: "The proposed constitutional amendment has no relation whatever to 'proportional representation.' It could not have . . . Proportional representation cannot be applied to the election of a single official. It is impossible to take one man and divide him up proportionately—or otherwise—and expect him to live."

My answer to this statement is brief. I have never accused Senator Lodge of proposing to divide up the President, proportionately or otherwise. When I say that he proposes to apply the principle of P. R. to the electoral voting system, I mean that he proposes to divide up the 531 electoral votes according to that system. In this I am saying no more than was said by Messrs. Hoag and Hallett of the Proportional Representation League in their book Proportional Representation. Under the caption "How P. R. Should Be Applied to the Presidency," they write: "Obviously we cannot have proportional representation in the Presidency because it is a single office, but we can have it in the electoral college or in the distribution of the electoral vote."

Now I submit that Senator Lodge's proposal is to have P. R. in the distribution of the electoral vote. His amendment provides that in electing the President and Vice President the electoral vote of each State shall be counted in proportion to the popular vote. Take a State with 16 electoral votes and assume that there are four candidates for President, A, B, C and D. A gets 40 percent of the popular vote; B gets 30 per cent, C gets 20 percent and D, 10 percent. Under the Lodge amendment A, B, C, and D would be credited with 6.4, 4.8, 3.2, and 1.6 electoral votes, respectively.

WHAT PRINCIPLE is this if it is not the principle of P. R.? Let us suppose that the congressional delegation of this same State were to be elected by the list system of proportional representation and that the popular vote followed the same pattern for Congressmen as for President. The number of seats to be distributed would be 14 instead of 16, since each State has two less Representatives than it has electoral votes. Do the arithmetic and you will find that the four parties would be entitled to 5.6, 4.2, 2.8, and 1.4 seats, respectively. Since fractional seats and fractional votes are unknown in the House of Representatives you might give the two seats represented by the sum of the decimals to parties A and C; since they have the two highest fractions. The final result would be that parties A, B, C, and D would be allotted 6, 4, 3, and 1 seats respectively.

Anyone who thinks about this will see that the Lodge formula is the same, both mathematically and in design, as the formula of P. R.; in each State the popular vote for candidate A is to the total popular vote as the electoral vote for candidate A is to the total electoral vote; in each State the popular vote for party A is to the total popular vote as the representation in Congress for party A is to the total representation in Congress. The mere fact that in one case you find the answer integers while in the other you figure three places of decimals can hardly be thought to affect the principle.

I MIGHT add that the principle advocated by Senator Lodge for counting the electoral votes has for many years been identified with the principle of P. R. If you trace the proportional features of the Lodge amendment backwards through history you come eventually to the Maish amendment of 1877. This amendment was described by one of its sponsors (Senator Buckalew) in the North American Review for July 1877, under three heads of remark: "First, it provides for a direct vote by the people for President and Vice President; second, it retains electoral votes as at present, while dispensing with electors anad electoral colleges; and third, it assigns to candidates electoral votes from each State in proportion to popular votes received by them therein."

The only difference between the Maish proposal and the Lodge proposal is that Maish would have awarded the votes represented by the sum of the decimals to the candidates having the largest fractions—that is to say, he would have made an integral distribution of the electoral vote. In the same year an exact counterpart of the Lodge proposal, even to the three places of decimals, was contained in an amendment introduced by Representative Cravens. In 1878 a similar proposal was reported by a committee of the House of Representatives.

The Maish amendment was described by J. Hampden Dougherty in his book on The Electoral System (a work to which Representative Gossett is much indebted) as "embodying some of the principles of the Hare plan for minority representation." H. V. Ames, in his Proposed Amendments to the Constitution, praises this same amendment as an "application of the system of proportional representation to the election of President and Vice President."

BUT LET us come down to more recent times. The immediate predecessor of the Lodge-Gossett amendment is the Lea-Walsh amendment of 1928 and subsequent years. According to Representative Gossett, "Mr. Lea is really the father of the particular proposal under consideration." The Lea amendment was indorsed time and again by the Proportional Representation League as an application of P. R. to presidential elections. Nor was Senator Walsh of Massachusetts, co-sponsor of the amendment, in any doubt as to its true nature. Pending a change in the Constitution he called upon the Senate to adopt P. R. in the electoral colleges of their own volition. On May 29, 1928, he introduced Senate Concurrent Resolution 32 which read in part as follows "Whereas, proportional representation . . . has proved to be easily workable, satisfactory to the voters, and just to all parties . . . Resolved, . . . that the Legislatures of the several States should establish by appropriate legislation proportional representation in the choosing of presidential electors."

Finally I would call Senator Lodge's attention to the June, 1948, issue of the National Municipal Review. In its department called "Proportional Representation" the progress of the Lodge and Gossett resolutions in Congress is reported under the caption "P. R. for Presidential Electoral Votes Advances."

It seems to me therefore that it is by no means "a play on words" to use the term "proportional representation" in connection with Senator Lodge's proposal. When two principles are exactly the same, why not call them by a single name? The real difference between Senator Lodge and myself is not one of terminology but of opinion. I think that the application of his principle (by whatever name he calls it) to the distribution of the States' electoral votes would increase the likelihood of the same principle being applied to the representation of the States in Congress. Senator Lodge thinks otherwise.

16 Killed in 4 Plane Crashes, Including 2 Cuban Legislators

By The Associated Press

Four air accidents in widely separate parts of the world cost 16 lives Sunday.

At Moron, Cuba, a local airline plane crashed on takeoff, burst into flames and killed all eight persons aboard, including two Cuban congressmen.

An RCAF Vampire jet crashed in a residential area of Winnipeg, Manitoba, killing one person and injuring two others.

A British transport plane, its pilot blinded by fog and a snowstorm, rammed into a mountain in Switzerland, killing all five crew members and the only passenger aboard, an Italian.

An RAF Vampire jet fighter brushed a bomber off Britain's Dorset coast during maneuvers and went out of control. The pilot got out with his parachute and was picked up at sea, but died of injuries and exposure. The bomber made it back to base safely.

New York, April 16 (AP).—William Seeschaf, 62, depressed since learning his son was aboard the Navy plane missing over the Baltic, died today of injuries suffered from a five-story plunge down a dumbwaiter shaft.

Seeschaf, who died in Fordham Hospital, plunged down the shaft in his Bronx home yesterday.

His widow said the Navy notified the couple Monday that their son, Lieut. Howard William Seeschaf, formerly of Arlington, Va., was aboard the Navy Privateer missing a week. She said her husband had been despondent since, not going to his job as a plumber.

weather—a sunny 62 degrees at 4:52 p. m.: Just right for taking a drive.

The Weather Bureau, just as happy over conditions as anyone, promised more good weather for today. They call for an afternoon high of 68 degrees to follow overnight lows of 37 in the city and 32 in the suburbs. Yesterday's lowest was 33 degrees at 5:05 a. m.

Such weather as yesterday's—not too warm, not too cold—makes things just right for the cherry blossoms. If it continues, the experts say, the blossoms will last through Wednesday — perhaps longer on the young trees. The double-blossom cherry trees can be expected in 12 days or so.

Where did they all come from?

The Board of Trade estimated that visitors alone numbered 100,000—a figure the Capital's sightseeing companies would "ante" by 10,000.

But Washingtonians also took advantage of the day.

To judge by the license plates, nearby Virginia and the Zoo were the favorites of residents.

What's the STRENGTH of a Bank?

Just as an aeronautical engineer has his methods of rating strength, so a corporation treasurer knows how to size up the financial strength of a bank from its balance sheet. We hope all treasurers will study ours.

But there's more to a bank than a balance sheet can show. For instance, we recognize an obligation to make bank service increasingly useful to the people of Washington. We believe there's room in banking for vision and imagination, and these, too, can be factors of strength:

Our concept of bank service expresses itself in our efforts to encourage business and industry by finding speedy and helpful answers to their problems; in our efforts to promote general employment by making loans for constructive commercial and individual purposes.

In short, our aim is to give banking service over and beyond the routine. If that's what your business needs, why don't you ask for it . . . at the Union Trust?

Nats Make It 2 in Row Over Pirates, Win in 12th, 3-2

This Morning

With Shirley Povich

To Whom It May Concern:

WHEN THE presidential party moves into Griffith Stadium for the opening game tomorrow on its collective complimentary pass, Clark Griffith will pick up the tab for the 20 percent Federal tax. . . . The Secret Service has screened box seat ticket holders within a 100-foot radius of President Truman and his top-bracket guests . . . Unlike former Chief Executives who tooled onto the stadium lawn at the head of a fleet of block-long Cadillacs, Mr. Truman uses the rear, or plebian, entrance to the White House section . . . Mr. Truman's presence at the inaugural game last year is remembered as the biggest opening-game upset of all time; at least by the Nation's Dewey-eyed voters of the preceding November . . . When Connie Mack and Bucky Harris are invited to the presidential box for the traditional pregame greetings, they will represent a total of 75 years of major league management . . . Harris broke in as a presidential greeter under Calvin Coolidge and has successively witnessed the opening-game presence of Herbert Hoover, Franklin Roosevelt and Harry Truman . . . In fact, Harris and Mr. Mack are the only American League managers who were in harness when there was a Republican President.

POVICH

RALPH KINER, the old pro who hit 54 home runs for the Pirates last season, is now dealing, fittingly enough, in prose. He authors a three-a-week commentary captioned "Kiner's Liners" for a group of subscribing newspapers . . . Kiner says the 54 homers he hit in 1949 were a joy and a delight. Only the one he hit inside the park at Wrigley Field necessitated anything more than a jog. All of the others cleared the fences . . . Kiner is still aiming at Ruth's 60-homer mark, but he holds one undisputed distinction. He's the only bachelor who ever hit more than 50 homers . . . The fact that pitcher Al Widmar, the Browns' holdout, was finally persuaded to sign his contract by Commissioner Chandler is significant . . . Widmar's threat of a suit against baseball was sufficient for Chandler to get on the telephone and help negotiate his difficulties with the Browns . . . Chandler, happy at settling the Danny Gardella litigation and get out from under the eyes of the courts, is determined to keep baseball's docket clean . . . The trifling $1000 difference between Widmar and the Browns also angered Chandler who is depending on the club owners' good sense to help keep the game out of the courts.

IN THE YEAR when he pitched his only no-hit game, 1920, Walter Johnson failed to win 20 games eight straight years in that bracket . . . And it was the only season in which he had a sore arm . . . Ken Keltner's peeve against General Manager Hank Greenberg of the Indians who gave him his outright relief, is probably falling on Greenberg's deaf ears. "If Greenberg wants to run the club, let him run it," said Keltner, which is exactly what Hank believes to be his job . . . Ralph Kiner credits Greenberg with making him a home run hitter. "The only tip he gave me," says Kiner, "was a simple one. He said 'work hard at it'." . . . Bucky Harris is using contrasting psychology in an attempt to get the best out of his two outfielders, Gil Coan and Sam Mele. To Coan, he is saying nothing. Mele, he is consistently backpatting and telling him he's one of the league's great outfielders. Jim Tatum, Maryland's coach, and Charlie Justice will go to Germany in the summer to conduct a football clinic for the armed forces. Tatum has already decided on one piece of strategy. "We will not go into the Russian zone," he says.

AFTER VIEWING slow-balling Steve Nagy yesterday, the Pirates voted him "the pitcher I'd most like to get hit by." . . . After openly criticizing the defensive tactics of Jim Tatum's Maryland teams, George Marshall signed one of Tatum's assistants, Max Reed, as an assistant Redskin coach who'll specialize on defense . . . Clyde McCullough, Pittsburgh Pirates' catcher, likes the prospects of young Paul Pettit, the California schoolboy whom the Pirates gave a $100,000 bonus. "He has everything," says McCullough, "size, speed—and cash." . . . Note to fans who miss out on Tuesday's opening-game tickets at Griffith Stadium: Opening-game tickets go on sale at the stadium again on October 1, 1950 . . . Colleges are now being offered at half price the regulation footballs of the defunct All-America Conference which bear the autograph of Commissioner Jonas Ingram. Mac Speedie, end of the Cleveland Browns, peddled some at the University of Maryland the other day . . . When Beau Jack and Lew Jenkins fought at Uline Arena the other night, they netted $1280 each, of which $1000 was their take from the radio-television revenue.

DiMaggio And Berra Hit Homers; Yanks Win

New York, April 16 (AP).—With Yogi Berra and Joe DiMaggio hitting timely home runs, the New York Yankees made a clean sweep of the two-game series with Brooklyn Dodgers by downing them, 4-2, as 25,925 fans watched.

The Yankee with today's attendance included drew 205,677 this spring, and broke even in 36 games.

Starters Joe Hatten and Bob Porterfield each allowed two runs. Hatten pitched four innings to five for Porterfield.

Both Dodgers runs came in the third inning on Bobby Morgan's double, Bruce Edwards' single, a sacrifice by Hatten and George Shuba's long fly.

These three home runs brought the Yankee string total to 32, and DiMaggio's 3 hits boosted his spring average to .403, highest on the club.

Big 10 Bans Live Television

Chicago, April 16 (AP).—The Western Conference, in the first major move of its kind in the Nation, today barred "live" television of all its 1950 football games. Complete films of games will be made available for television purposes the day following the game.

A Big Ten spokesman said that the decision of conference athletic directors, would eliminate an estimated $500,000 in television revenue rights that would have accrued throughout the conference for games next fall.

"It was the conclusion of the directors of both conference and non-conference institutions," a Big Ten statement said, "that the 'live' television of football games will be more harmful than helpful to college athletics in general and college football in particular."

Sitting in with Big Ten officials at the two-day policy parley were representatives of Notre Dame, Marquette, Pittsburgh and Nebraska. Notre Dame already has signed for network "live" television of all its 1950 home games.

The Big Ten statement said:

"The conference sanctions 'deferred television' of its football games. It has not banned television; it has merely made an adjustment as to when the game may be viewed on television."

Falkenburg Takes River Oaks Singles

Phillies Rout Athletics, 11-2; Ennis Homers

Philadelphia, April 16 (AP).—The Philadelphia Phillies larruped the Philadelphia Athletics, 1 to 2, today with home runs by Del Ennis and Andy Seminick and brilliant pitching by young Curt Simmons entertaining a crowd of 9003 at Shibe Park.

Simmons, the erratic lefthander on whose shoulders rests the 1950 National League pennant hopes of the Phillies, allowed only five hits in seven innings. He walked seven and struck out six and was particularly tough in the clutch.

The Phils' victory today ended the two-game city series in a standoff as the Athletics won yesterday's opener, 7 to 4.

3-Run Wallop In 8th Is 11th For Williams

Boston, April 16 (AP).—Ted Williams' eleventh spring homer, with two on in the eighth inning against rookie righthander Ernie Johnson, gave the Boston Red Sox a 3-to-1 victory over the Boston Braves in their intra-city series windup today before a 15,203 crowd at Fenway Park.

Until the Bosox' mighty slugger took over in such positive fashion, the National Leaguers, given airtight pitching by Southpaw Johnny Antonelli, appeared to be heading for their second win in the four-game series.

The Tribesmen bunched three of their four hits, singles by Willard Marshall, Bob Elliott and Earl Torgeson, against Lefty Chuck Stobbs for their seventh-inning tally.

Tom Wright, pinch-hitting for Stobbs, singled with one down to launch the Red Sox' victory drive. Dom DiMaggio then rapped a hot liner into right field and, after Johnny Pesky fouled out, Williams drove terrifically into the right field bullpen to wrap up the game.

Yost's Fly Wraps It Up; Noren Bats In Two Runs

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

The Nats overcame the wildness of Dick Weik, the inexperience of Jim Pearce and the stubborness of the Pittsburgh Pirates all in the same afternoon and were rewarded for their perserverance with a 3-2, 12-inning victory over the National Leaguers yesterday.

Just when 8000 Griffith Stadium customers were thinking in terms of a cold Sunday evening dinner, Eddie Yost put an end to the three-hour marathon with a fly ball that enabled Al Kozar to check in and give the Nats their second straight over the Pirates.

It was the final exhibition game of the spring for both teams. For the Nats, it was their ninth success against as many losses in major league competition and a 15-won and 11-loss over-all record.

The Pirates, meanwhile, were suffering their seventh straight defeat at the hands of an American League team.

Weik, strong-armed, fast-balling righthander, wild-pitched the first Pittsburgh run across in the 9th to force the overtime skirmishing while Pearce set up the second Bucs' run in the 11th with two straight balks.

While the performances of Weik and Pearce were not exactly brilliant, those of Rookie Outfielder Irv Noren and Pitcher Steve Nagy were.

Noren drove in the first two Nat runs. He followed Sam Dente's booming centerfield triple in the sixth with a single and belted a triple himself in the eleventh to score Yost to collar the Pirates, who had forged ahead, 2-1.

Nagy, the 29-year-old southpaw drafted from the Coast League, where Noren excelled last year, set the Bucs down with only two hits in the six innings he worked and permitted only one Pirate to stray as far as second.

As spectacular as Nagy's performance, Weik's and Pearce's, up from Charlotte for another chance, wasn't.

Weik pitched a single to Ralph Kiner, who got three of Pittsburgh's seven hits, in the 9th and four pitches later Kiner scored to tie the game. Two infield outs moved him to third and immediately thereafter Weik uncorked a wild pitch to score him.

Kiner opened the eleventh with a single and Pearce balked him to third base on two straight pitches, failing to come to a complete halt after taking the pitching stretch. Waly Westlake's fly scored the Pittsburgh homer king of the Bucs owned a 2-to-1 lead, but Noren took care of that in a jiffy with his triple to right center.

Harry Gumbert, last of four Pirates' pitchers, was tagged for the loss. Vollmer greeted him with a double to start the 12th but was promptly erased at third on Kozar's attempted sacrifice.

Mickey Grasso kept the rally alive with a single, which sent Kozar to third. Ed Stewart, batting for Pearce, was purposely walked and Yost followed with his fly to right to wind up the struggle.

IN SHORT—Sam Mele won all defensive honors. His rifle throw cut down one Pirate at third base and in the 12th he pitched a perfect strike to first base to double up Hank Schenz after hauling in Fitz Gerald's liner . . . Eddie Robinson got one of the Nats' eight hits and thus kept his consecutive-game hitting streak intact. It now stands at 17 in a row . . . Bill Werle, Buc lefthander, struck out three of the first four Nats he faced, but the Nats finally solved him for their second run in the 11th . . .

A's Switch To Scheib For Opener

A LA TRUMAN—Right-hander Ray Scarborough, who'll hurl the opener for the Nats tomorrow against the Athletics, steps into the Presidential box at Griffith Stadium to give his impression of the left-handed Harry Truman tossing out the first ball

IT'LL BE Righthander Carl Scheib instead of Lefthander Bobby Shantz for the Athletics against the Nats Tuesday at Griffith Stadium, the Macks announced yesterday.

The reason: Scheib owns seven victories over the Nats and has never lost a game to them in the four years he's been with the As.

Manager Connie Mack had previously announced that Shantz, the 5-foot-7-inch southpaw, would get the opening-day call but, after studying the lifetime pitching records, he switched to Scheib.

Scheib, a 6-footer, made two appearances against the Nats this spring, and his performances were hardly sensational. He permitted four hits and one run in a three-inning stint, following this with a six-run, eight-hit job in four innings three weeks later.

For the Nats, it's still Harry Truman, who'll turn the assignment over to Ray Scarborough after tossing out the first ball.

Demaret's 270 Wins Atlanta Open by Four Strokes

He's Captain Fletcher Smith

At 89, He Still Shoots in 80s

By Dave Heller
Post Reporter

There's nothing like a brisk 18 holes of golf keep a young man in trim. Take it from 89-year-old Capt. Fletcher Smith, who shoots in the high 80s. Spry as a ballet dancer, Captain Fletcher never misses a weekend at Rock Creek Public Golf Club, where he's a long-time member.

The captain is a veteran of the Spanish-American War and has been an ardent golfer since 1914.

East Potomac Public Golf Course is sponsoring an open tournament for the benefit of the Police Boy's Club. The qualifying rounds are April 19 and 20. (Qualifiers may play either day). The championship matches will be April 21 and 22. Downtown department stores have donated prizes. There's a $2 entry fee.

Jack Baisinger, playing at East Potomac, swears the wind was so strong Saturday that it blew one of his T shots to a green 50 yards behind the tee.

Courtney Litz of Anacostia, wants to bet all-comers that Freddie Lukat of the same club hits the longest T shot on public golf courses. Lukat has driven Anacostia's 340-yard first hole several times.

Jim Miller says that Charley Pierce of Rock Creek is the best left-hander around. Pierce turned in a 41 for Rock Creek's tough B course in yesterday's cold, high wind, and a 38 for the A course.

Al Houghton, pro at Prince Georges, reports that Jim Vance, of that club, has cut several strokes off his game by the unusual device of putting one-handed. Vance used to be a cross-handed golfer but is switching to a conventional grip. He shoots in the 80's and Houghton said it might be worth while for other cross-handed golfers to try the one-handed putt.

Lionel Mills, of Rock Creek, records an important moment in his life. Precisely at 4:17 Saturday, Mills hit a long straight drive which landed on the green of the ninth hole. However, Mills sadly admits it took him four more shots to put the ball in the cup.

Kenny Graham, Pro at Fort Dupont Public Golf Course, recently was admitted to membership in the PGA. Incidentally, Fred Williamson, manager of Fort Dupont, says his course is the only one in the city that a golfer without a car can get to without a long walk. Public transportation is available right up to the ninth hole.

Golfing Roundup

WOODMONT: George Fazio, Woodmont's new pro, shot a par 67 on his first time around the course to take first place with Al Miller in the club's first "Pro-Shmo" match of the year. Miller shot a 79, and his handicap was 16 for a team total of 132.

Summaries: First, George Fazio 69 and Al Miller 79-16-23, team total 132. Second (tie) Clare Emery 72 and Julian Cohen 92-30-62, team total 134. George Mason 83-11-71 and Arthur Lyon, 86-23-63, team total 134. Third (tie) Chips Cantor 77-7-70, and Sam Block 86-18-67, team total 137. Andy Mann 79-12-67, and Maury Forman 87-17-70, team total 137. Fourth, Bob Biltz, 87-13-73, and Harry Burka 93-27-66, team total 139.

KENWOOD: The Blind Bogey tournament at Kenwood ended in a three way tie yesterday between R. H. Fuchs, W. F. Watkins, and E. S. Pardoe. All had scores of 75.

F. G. Rigsby, B. W. Wasser and L. W. Perce grabbed the lead in first round play for the Chamberlin Trophy, a two thirds handicap affair. All had 73's.

PRINCE GEORGES: Mr. and Mrs. J. Allen Conover took first low net in the Al Houghton Husband and Wife Tournament yesterday with an 87—17—70. Mr. and Mrs. George Voight won the low gross with an 87.

Summaries: First low net: Mr. and Mrs. J. Allen Conover, 87-17-70. Low gross: Mr. and Mrs. George Voight. Second low net: Mr. and Mrs. Norman Brown, 88-15-73. Third low net: Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Beale, 98-25-73. Fourth low net: Mr. and Mrs. Jay Woodside, 96-23-73. Fifth low net: Major and Mrs. C. Ross, 90-16-74.

MANOR: J. W. Stuart's 92—12—80 won the blind bogey at Manor Golf and Country Club yesterday. Other scores were: Gene Archer, 93—13—80; Ed Kekenes, 91—11—80; H. P. Brightman, 95—15—80, and John Allen, 89—5—84.

BELLE HAVEN: Dr. Paul Zehfuss took the lead in the Belle Haven Sweepstakes, shooting an 83 with a 15 handicap for a 65 net. George Knight was second with 87—20—67. Commander Frank Heyer won the low gross with 75.

Three eagle deuces featured other play. Frank Heyer scored on the eleventh hole with a seven-iron, Charles Holden with an eight-iron on the tenth hole, and Eddie Edwards made it on the fourth with a seven-iron.

ARMY NAVY: Army Navy's blind bogey tourney ended in a five-way tie for the lead yesterday as C. G. Rice, N. A. Sisak, Lem Reese, J. V. Dillion, and J. C. B. Barrett all shot 77's.

Sam Snead, Jim Ferrier Tie for 2d

Atlanta, April 16 (AP).—Jimmy Demaret finished a junior golf grand slam today in Grand Slam King Bobby Jones' home State when he won the $10,000 North Fulton Open with 270 strokes.

Demaret shot the final round at the North Fulton Park in 66, five under par for the 6762-yard par 71 course. He needed every birdie and eagle he could get since the great Sam Snead was close to overhauling him all the way.

Just last Sunday, Jimmy won the Masters at Augusta with 283 strokes.

Snead was a close chaser all the way. Jim Ferrier, who last week blew the Masters, came up late in the play to pull into a second place tie with Snead. Their totals were 274.

On the final round Snead fired a 67 and Ferrier matched Demaret's 66.

Demaret was tied for eighth after the first round with seven other golfers. After the second round he pulled into a tie with Johnny Palmer for sixth place. His third round 64 set a competitive course record on this tough layout and bounced the loudly-dressed Demaret into the lead with three strokes to spare.

His only win this year before the Masters was at Phoenix, Ariz. The smiling Texan, who laughingly claims he is 38, placed second in the Texas Open at San Antonio and second at Greensboro, N. C., last month.

Clayton Heafner, a big sandy mustached pro from Charlotte, N. C., came in fourth with a 69 for a 278 total. He had led the field after the second day.

Demaret in eight days has now won $6800—$2400 first prize money at the Masters, a matching $2400 from his athletic equipment sponsor as a bonus for copping the Masters and $2000 today.

Umps 'Have to Guess' When Dumb Players Cross 'em Up

By Herb Heft
Post Reporter

Irving Shoemaker, sandlot baseball umpire here for 25 years, broke down the other day, and admitted it. "Umpires have to guess sometimes," he said.

He was quick to add, however, "It's not because we are blind or too old to run; it's because the young crop of ballplayers are so dumb, they catch us off guard and out of position."

Lest you start thinking that Mr. Shoemaker is a blackhearted "Alibi Ike" who hates kids, let it be pointed out that:

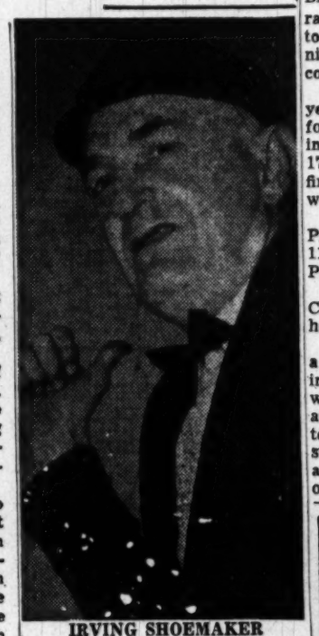
He has three sons, one of whom is a catcher for the D. C. Fire Department team. And he devotes eight hours a day giving the tykes at Barney Neighborhood House instructions in carpentering.

"I love kids, but I can't help coming right out and saying that nowadays, they don't think on the ballfield. When I was playing third base for Southern Railway in the Terminal League in 1912, I was told to decide ahead of time what I'd do with the ball if it were hit to me.

"Evidently, that isn't so today. The kids, without thinking, throw to the wrong bases, and an umpire, working a sandlot game by himself, is caught looking the wrong way. He has to guess.

"Last year, for example, in a junior game, there were men on first and second with two out. A grounder was hit to the third baseman, just three feet off the bag.

"Naturally, expecting the third baseman to make the easy play at third, I headed over that way from my position near the pitcher's box. But the third baseman had a brainstorm and threw to first. I had my back turned and had to guess."



IRVING SHOEMAKER
"Umpires Guess Sometimes"

Shoemaker has been living in Washington for 42 of his 51 years. He was playing unlimited ball when he was just 13, an accomplishment unheard of in these days. Some of the boys he played with are Monk Fraser, late New York Giants outfielder, and Tots Long, who got as high as Rochester in pro ball.

Chisox Lose Two to Cubs

Chicago, April 16 (AP).—The Chicago Cubs captured both ends of a twin bill with the White Sox, 7 to 2 and 5 to 4, before 22,669 here today. It gave the Cubs a 3-2 edge in the annual spring city series and closed their exhibition campaign with 23 victories, 10 defeats and one tie.

It was the eighth straight loss for the White Sox and concluded their spring competition with an 11-19 record.

Horse Figure Dies

Des Moines, Iowa, April 16 (AP). Henry Knauf, president of the United States Trotting Association died today of a heart seizure. He was 59 years old.

Rockville Upsets Defending Champ Colesville

Rockville defeated defending champ Colesville, 7-5, yesterday at Rockville in the first game of the Montgomery County Baseball League season.

Two singles, three walks, and three errors made for a big five-run fourth inning for the winners.

Jack Castro homered for Rockville with none on in the second inning.

In other league games, Frederick topped Silver Spring, 8-7, in 12 innings at Frederick on Catcher Paul Hildebrand's homer with none on base, and Bethesda took Damascus, 5-2, at Bethesda.

Harness Men At Rosecroft

Lured by $550,000 in purses, harness racing horsemen will converge on Rosecroft Raceway in Oxon Hill, Md., today to prep for the opening of its 20-night meet May 22.

Col. Cornelius Jadwin, general manager of Rosecroft, said that he expects the stables to be bulging to capacity within 10 days. More than 500 trotters and pacers have been nominated for the stake events he said.

Riverdale Heights Romps in Softball

Six games opened the Prince Georges County Firemen's Softball League yesterday. Results:

Riverdale Heights 19, Hillside 10; Mt. Rainier 17, Landover Hills 3; Capitol Heights 21, Seat Pleasant 10; Oxen Hill 14, Tuxedo-Cheverly 10; Bladensburg 14, Cottage City 3; College Park 20, Berwyn Heights 16.

Brown Crew Wins; Navy 7th

Annapolis, Md., April 16 (AP).—Brown finished fifth in today's race but picked up enough points to win the MacMillan Cup from nine other crews in the two-day collegiate sailing competition.

Coupled with a first place in yesterday's race, Brown's performance today gave it 18¼ points in the series. Cornell followed with 17 and MIT, which came home first in today's event was third with 16¼.

Other finishers: Colgate, 16; Princeton, 13; Harvard, 12; Navy, 11; Bowdoin, 10; Yale, 9, and Penn 7.

MIT's time over the 11-mile Chesapeake Bay course was 3 hours, 35 minutes.

At the first marker Navy looked a good thing for first place honors in the series. The academy crew was second in yesterday's race, and approached the first marker today with a 250-yard lead. But it struck the buoy, disqualifying it and enabling it to pick up only one point—for starting the race.

In Turner's Co-Feature Tonight

Gene Smith Fights Torres; Clayton Boxes Bobby Lloyd

Gene Smith and Marshall Clayton, fast-rising local fighters, will be shooting for their tenth straight pro victories in cofeature boxing matches at Turner's Arena tonight.

Smith, 18-year-old featherweight, is matched against Aponte Torres, fast-moving Puerto Rican veteran, in a scheduled seven rounder while Clayton, former world-wide Army champion, meets Irish Bobby Lloyd in a bout slated for an eight round distance.

Tonight's card closes out the 1949-50 indoor boxing season at Turner's.

Both local fighters have been undefeated in nine previous pro starts and Smith has scored seven kayoes while Clayton has five knockout victories to his credit.

Smith is rated an eight to five favorite over Torres.

Clayton also will be up against an experienced fighter in Lloyd, an Irish-Italian scrapper who has been busy in 31 fights in the three years of his career. The 19-year-old Lloyd has won 27 of his bouts

Tonight's preliminary card includes a return four round match between Frank Ball, local lightweight and Kenny Leach of Baltimore.

A five round semi-final tonight lists Chuck Goldsby, New York middle weight against Jimmy O'Brien of Baltimore, while other four rounders pit Joe Davis against Jimmy Sewell, local welters.

Hublitt Wins Fencing Title

Clarence Hublitt of the Washington Chapter of the Amateur Fencers' League of America won the club's thirty-first annual Divisional Prep championship yesterday at the YMCA with six victories and no defeats.

AT HAVRE De GRACE

Dear Folks:

I was talking to a friend in the 'Graw press box about the horse Weatherman, winner of Thursday's feature at Charles Town and happened to remark, "The colt gets his name from his dam, Precipitation." My friend said, "You're all wet on that. Precipitation isn't a mare, he's a sire," and he pointed to the Friday program here and there was Precipitation listed as the sire of Spring Tornado in the seventh race. Of course this called for argument but it was settled amicably when the books showed Precipitation as an American mare and Precipitation as an Irish sire, the horse Spring Tornado having been shipped to this country eight years ago. So much for breeding, now for the winners.—BILL.

Hash Night's Victims Go Wednesday

Havre de Grace, Md., April 15.—Sprinters and distance runners will share honors at Havre de Grace during the coming week. Two stakes are scheduled. The Philadelphia Handicap, at 6 furlongs, is down for decision on Wednesday, while on Saturday the Burke Handicap at a mile and a sixteenth will be the feature.

Palatine Stable's Hash Night, winner of the six-furlong Hartford handicap last Wednesday, is not eligible for the Philadelphia, but is expected to be a starter in the longer Burke at the end of the week.

However, for the midweek attraction, the horses which finished second, third and fourth behind Hash Night in the Harford, probably will take another run at the $7500 added money and in addition to this trio, 8 to 10 others are likely to be in the lineup.

W. P. Taylor's Magnet (117), Greentree Stable's Wine List (117) and John E. Hughes' Vital Sun (106) picked up the smaller portions of the purse in the Harford.

They probably will find among their rivals in the Philadelphia, such horses as Bobanet's King Midas (104), Brookfield Farm's Istan (114), Richard E. Carter's Oriole (110), Dion Kerr's Flying Weather, (112), W. M. Jeffords' Loyal Legion (114), R. Roy McClarin's New Oxford (108), Mrs. Jimmy McGee's Little Harp (114), E. A. Nicodemus' Laran (115), E. A. Stone's Rare Mineral (110) and H. H. Hecht's The Pincher (120). The last named turned in a smart victory in an overnight event this week and will have strong backing in the Philadelphia.

The Burke, lone distance stake of the meeting for older horses, hardly will meet the same fate it did last spring. On that occasion Coaltown was entered and no opposition developed, so the Calumet star took the race in a walk-over.

This season Hash Night will be one of the choices with his rivals likely to include Dart By from the Brookmeade Stable, Greentree's Brick, Mrs. W. M. Jeffords' Adile, King Ranch's Flash Burn, C. Mahlon Kline's Slam Bang, S. W. Labrot's Taran and possibly C. E. Tuttle's Double Brandy.

Hill Prince In Preakness

Baltimore, April 16 (AP).—Hill Prince, 1-2 favorite which finished ninth yesterday in the Experimental Handicap No. 2 at Jamaica, is one of three known supplemental entries for the Pimlico Preakness.

The Maryland Jockey Club said it received the nomination of the C. T. Chenery colt, accompanied by the $1500 supplemental entry fee, just before yesterday's midnight deadline. The $50,000-added Preakness will be run here May 20.

Also nominated just before the deadline were Mrs. James Carson's Kinsman and Mrs. William H. Labrot's Balkan. Kinsman was beaten by half a length in finishing third to Sunglow in yesterday's Chesapeake Stakes at Havre de Grace.

Administration Seen Opposing Leave Cuts Pending New Study

Now the Administration is tangling with the leave controversy.

Both the Budget Bureau and the Civil Service Commission have been asked for their views on the Douglas bills that would reduce annual and sick leave for most Government workers. The request was made by the Senate Postoffice and Civil Service Committee, which is preparing to hold public hearings on the measures.

No final decision has been made, but it's a safe bet the Administration will:

1. Oppose both Douglas bills as now written;

2. Oppose action by this Congress on any plan to restrict or reduce leave, but,

3. Will urge a thorough study of all the leave laws and practices by a committee of experts with directions to report their findings and recommendations to the Congress early next year.

NAVY SHUT-DOWNS: Representative Wigglesworth (R., Mass.) says he has been advised that the Navy will close down two of its big shipyards soon unless they are given additional work. He reports:

"The situation in the Navy yards today is deplorable. Employment is deteriorating rapidly. There is little or no construction in view . . . A long-range program of construction must be encouraged if we are to take care of our skilled staffs of workers at essential shipyards, which have proved themselves to be vitally essential from the standpoint of national defense."

THE 400: After weeks of delay, the 400 Federal employes and officials who will be placed in the three super grades will be announced in a day or so. The three top grades were set up by Congress last October. They are: 300 jobs in GS-16 ($11,200 to $12,000); 75 jobs in GS-17, ($12,200 to $13,000) and 25 jobs in GS-18, $14,000.

HEAT POLICY: The criticism of Uncle Sam's liberal leave policies will have this effect—fewer agencies will dismiss their employes this summer because of the heat. Personnel people already have started to draft a tougher heat policy.

MINT: The staff of the Bureau of the Mint is being riddled by lay-offs. It's down to less than 1000 employes, compared to more than 4000 a year or so ago. Employes with long years of service, veterans and nonveterans alike, have been fired during the major cutbacks. More than 50 veterans have appealed to the courts to save their jobs.

New Drugs Held Aiding Undulant Fever Cases

Periodic Treatment Progress Reported To Alexandria Medical Clinic

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Periodic treatment with the newer drugs to prevent return of undulant fever were reported yesterday at the Northern Virginia Clinical Assembly.

No permanent cure claims were made for the prophylactic treatments, but Dr. Theodore E. Woodward of Baltimore said that 50 patients who are getting them "seem to be doing quite well."

Half of that number, he told the Virginia doctors in assembly in Alexandria, are receiving chloromycetin, in three-day applications, every three months.

The other 25 are responding equally well to similar treatments with aureomycin, termed the "golden drug" for both its color and its value to medicine.

Disease Often Fatal

Dr. Woodward, assistant professor of medicine at the University of Maryland, added that a third, even newer antibiotic, terramycin, would "undoubtedly" prove similarly effective against brucellosis (undulant fever).

The disease is a particularly stubborn and often fatal one for humans. Contracted generally from animals, it is an occupational hazard to dairy workers and meat handlers, and can be transmitted in unpasteurized milk.

Effectiveness of chloromycetin and aureomycin against the acute stages of the disease is already well known. Unfortunately, however, the disease too often flares up again after many months of apparent inactivity.

This happened so frequently the doctors "had to assume there would be relapses," Dr. Woodward said. Furthermore, it was noted both clinically and in laboratory tests that the disease organisms did not develop any resistance to the drugs, he added.

Sponsored by Medical Society

Yesterday's all-day meeting, sponsored by the Alexandria Medical Society, was the first annual clinical assembly, designed to give physicians of northern Virginia a chance to catch up on the latest developments in medicine and surgery. It was held at the Ficklin School Auditorium, 2d and N. Pitt sts., Alexandria.

Other speakers and their subjects included Drs. Sidney Scherelis, Johns Hopkins University, "Acute Cardiac Emergencies"; J. Edward Berk, Temple University, "Duodenal Ulcers"; Harvey S. Tompkins, Veterans Administration, "Phychiatric Emergencies"; Robert J. Coffey, Georgetown University School of Medicine, "Acute Surgical Abdomen."

Also, Drs. Alexander J. Schaffer, Johns Hopkins University, "Pediatric Emergencies"; J. Mason Hundley, jr., University of Maryland, "Vaginal Bleeding"; and Custis Lee Hall, George Washington University, "The Immediate Treatment of Fractures."

Tribute Paid To Lincoln on Date of Death

Admirers of Abraham Lincoln, as well as his detractors, have made him a "reluctant contemporary" of Americans ever since he died, Assistant Librarian David Chambers Mearns of the Library of Congress said yesterday.

Mearns addressed 300 persons commemorating the eighty-fifth anniversary of Lincoln's assassination. The program, sponsored by the National Park Service and the Washington Lincoln Group, was held in the Lincoln Museum, formerly Ford's Theater, where the Civil War President was shot.

Mearns said Americans have been making Lincoln a spokesman of their own opinions by misquotation, by lifting his words out of context, and by sheer invention of "appropriate statements."

"Making Lincoln part of ourselves and of our present is a most moving tribute," he said, "but it does neither Lincoln nor us any good."

As for those who ascribe supernatural powers to Lincoln, he added: "They obscure the fact that his greatness derives from not possessing those qualities."

The National Press Club male chorus provided music. Comdr. John E. Allen, USNR, secretary of the Columbia Historical Society, was chairman. The American Legion national guard of honor presented the colors.

Shanti and Ashok Make Formal Debut at the Zoo . . .

MME. PANDIT POSES WITH SHANTI (LEFT) AND ASHOK AND THEIR MAHOUT, BABA JAN

KIDS GRAB BEST SPOTS AS CROWD BEGINS TO FORM AT THE ZOO TO SEE ELEPHANTS' PRESENTATION

Ashok and Shanti Officially 'At Home' Now After Presentation by Mme. Pandit at Zoo

By S. L. Fishbein
Post Reporter

The Odyssey of Ashok and Shanti, occasionally fraught with suspense during their journey from India's jungle to the domesticity of the Zoo, came to a fitting and happy climax at 3:58 p. m. yesterday.

While diplomatic oratory and the cheers of 2500 persons rent the air, the two baby elephants clumped shyly out to be formally presented as Prime Minister Nehru's gift to American children.

It was standing room only, and not much of that, in the walks and hills behind the Zoo's elephant house as Ashok and Shanti appeared, bells around their necks tinkling and trunks probing hungrily in the strange American grass.

Those Pesky Photographers!

Like almost all celebrities, Ashok and Shanti found the demands of a flock of cameramen confusing and somewhat trying. It required almost a dozen keepers and a native Indian elephant boy to keep their trunks lifted in the classic elephant pose. That grass was so good.

Once through with the demanding cameramen, the hefty young elephants shared the limelight with Mme. Vijaya Lakshmi Pandit, the gracious and beautiful Indian Ambassador whose voice was even more captivating than the haunting Indian music that accompanied the ceremony.

"In olden days," said Mme. Pandit, formally presenting Nehru's gift, "it was customary for an Ambassador to carry rare and costly gifts from his government to the country of his representation.

Much Enthusiasm

"But changing times put an end to his gracious practice, and when I came to Washington a year ago I carried nothing more material than the friendship of my people. But today I bring you gifts which, if one may judge from the enthusiasm and the eager inquiries that have been made about them, will be very welcome.

"The lady elephant is called Shanti—Peace," she explained. "The West has symbolized peace in the form of a dove, a singularly helpless and insipid bird. Peace is not insipid. It is positive, dynamic, vital to our need.

"The modern concept of peace is through strength and power—the power to create, to give. Little Shanti possesses both these attributes—she has strength and power and also great gentleness."

Nudged by Elephants

The ceremonies over, they brought the obliging Ambassador out to the now-restive elephants. No respecters of diplomatic immunity, Ashok and Shanti nudged and pawed against the slight, smiling figure standing alone between them as photographers kept a persistent shout of "Smile here, Madame Pandit, this way."

The presence of a crew of attendants and Baba Jan, the elephant boy, was not too reassuring. "I really don't feel at all safe," the lady said.

"I see the arrival of the elephants has leaked out in the papers," said Zoo Director Dr. William Mann, wryly as his turn at the microphone came.

Dr. Mann thanked a representative of the Isthmian Steamship Co., which brought the animals from Bombay free of charge.

"Judging from the enormous crowd here this afternoon, seldom has a gift from abroad caused so much comment or been more truly welcome," said George C. McGhee, Assistant Secretary of State.

As a symbolic finale to the ceremony, McGhee's nine-year-old daughter, Marcia, and Anditya Nehru, 11, son of the financial counselor of the Indian Embassy, were brought front and center to shake hands.

Ban on 'Harmful' TV Shows Asked by Catholic Council

A demand that the television industry bar programs "harmful to the morals of the viewing public," particularly to children, was voted yesterday by the National Council of Catholic Men.

At the closing session of its two-day conference at 1312 Massachusetts ave. nw., the group voted a statement of policy which asserted: "There are rumblings, not only amongst the viewing public but also within the confines of the industry, that televsion is being used to the detriment of the best interests of the family, especially the children, through some of the programs being presented."

The group also voted a resolution demanding that FM wavelengths be set aside by the Federal Communications Commission for religious and other non-profit organizations.

The measure admitted that attacks have been made on these applications under authority of the constitutional application of the provision for separation of church and state, and asserted that the FCC should "refrain from applying the first clause of the first amendment (to the Constitution) where it has no proper application."

Steward Lynch, attorney, of Wilmington, Del., was elected president. Other officers chosen: Francis X. Nally, editor of the Toledo Catholic Chronicle, Toledo, Ohio, vice president; Alfred Sattler, president of the Catholic Central Verein, New York, secretary, and Dr. George R. Ellis, master of the fourth degree, Knights of Columbus, Washington, treasurer.

John W. Babcock, Detroit attorney, was reelected fifth member of the NCCM executive committee.

Man Slain, Wife Is Shot In Argument

Rozier B. Jones, 34, was shot to death and his 24-year-old wife Elinor, was wounded yesterday in a fight at the home of the dead man's mother-in-law.

Detective Sergt. W. B. Vogelsang of the homicide squad, said Jones apparently shot himself in the right temple with a revolver after firing two shots at his wife in the home of Mrs. Columbia Scott, 1113 7th st. ne., shortly after 2 p. m.

Mrs. Jones, wounded in the temple and thigh, was reported in undetermined condition at Casualty Hospital last night.

Vogelsang said members of the Scott family told him Mrs. Jones had come to the home of her mother following an argument with her husband Saturday night in their home at 1388 E st. ne. The shooting occurred, he said, after Jones came to the Scott home to "talk things over."

Jones was pronounced dead at the scene by a Casualty Hospital physician. Dr. Richard N. Rosenberg, deputy District coroner, said he would issue a certificate of suicide.

Catholic Veterans Elect E. S. J. Peters As Commander

Edward S. J. Peters of 2410 Perry st. ne., was reelected commander of the District Department of the Catholic War Veterans at the concluding session yesterday of the department's two-day annual convention in the Washington Hotel.

Martin A. Cook was reelected first vice commander. Others chosen included Col. A. E. Schlanser, second vice commander, and Angelo Puglisi, third vice commander.

With representatives of major veterans' groups as guests, the department reiterated its fealty and gratitude to Archbishop Patrick A. O'Boyle of the Washington Archdiocese for his support.

Prince Georges Tract Purchased For $1,500,000

Sale Believed One of Largest Cash Real Estate Deals in D. C. Area

In one of the largest cash real estate deals in the history of the Washington area, a tract of 500 acres has been sold for $1,500,000 to an unidentified group of buyers, it was announced yesterday.

The tract is on Livingston and Barnaby rds., just over the District line in Prince Georges County.

Seller was Fulton R. Gordon, 83, dean of real estate men here, who said he bought the mostly wooded tract 20 years ago for $500 an acre. He said opening of the S Capitol st. bridge brought it to the value of approximately $3000 an acre, for which he sold it.

Gordon said that one of the purchasers is "married into the du Pont family," and that they intend to develop the area in low-cost housing, with large commercial adjuncts.

The sale, he said, resulted from a classified advertisement in The Washington Post. He said he has been an advertiser in this paper for more than 60 years and so labels himself in his advertisements.

Gordon said that final legal details of the transaction will occupy about four months, and at their conclusion, the cash will be delivered. He said his son, Fulton R. Gordon, jr., who has offices at 1427 I st. nw., aided him in the sale.

Gordon, a native of Baileys Crossroads, Va., became impressed with possibilities of Washington real estate when he was driving a milk wagon between the two communities more than 60 years ago. He went from the milk business into the real estate business, where he has remained.

Among his developments are large sections of Chevy Chase, North Laurel, Md.; Fort Myer Heights, Va.; Mount Pleasant Heights and the area along Connecticut ave., near the Uptown Theater.

All But Two 'Cycle Cops 'Grounded'

Alexandria has "grounded" all but two of its motorcycle patrolmen as a safety measure, it was learned yesterday.

On orders from City Manager W. Guy Ancell, the use of two-wheeled motorcycles has been discontinued except for funerals, parades and ceremonial occasions. Two three-wheeled machines, used for parking meter checks in the downtown area, will remain in service.

As a result of the order, effective Saturday, 10 men have been reassigned to patrol cars and foot beats, according to Maj. Edgar Sims, superintendent of police. He said the department will eventually dispose of eight of its 10 "bikes," leaving two for occasional parade use.

Ancell said yesterday he had issued the order as the result of a series of recent accidents in which motorcycle policemen were injured. The latest occurred last week when Corpl. William Schwartz, a veteran patrolman, suffered a badly lacerated hand when his cycle was struck by an automobile.

The city manager said he had taken similar action in Portsmouth, Va., where he served as manager before coming to Alexandria, and found patrol cars to be more practical than motorcycles as well as reducing the element of risk. He noted that Virginia State Police discontinued the use of motorcycles for the same reasons more than 10 years ago.

Police Vainly Seek Leads In Store Crime

Homicide Squad detectives continued probing the Good Friday murders of two watchmen in the Lansburgh & Bro. department store But results were negative.

Lieut. Richard Felber, of the homicide squad, said that "a number" of employes and former employes of the store, and their associates, were questioned yesterday.

The two victims were Oliver R. Hess, 56, of 1324 Massachusetts ave. nw., found dead on the sixth floor, and John C. Carpenter, 66, of 506 G st. nw., found on the main floor. Both had been stabbed to death with a butcher's boning knife, taken from a store kitchen.

A total of $1300 in rewards has been offered for "information leading to the arrest and conviction of the slayer or slayers."

Domestic Tragedy

Detective's Wife Ruled A Suicide

A certificate of suicide was issued yesterday by Dr. Richard M. Rosenberg, deputy District coroner, in the death of Mrs. Katherine H. Schelin, 37, wife of First Precinct Detective Olaf Schelin.

Mrs. Schelin shot herself Saturday night with her husband's service revolver, police said.

The Schelins had had a "family argument," Schelin told fellow officers, and she went to a second-floor bedroom, while he remained in the first-floor living room. Then he heard the shot. He went to the room, where Gail, their 13-year-old daughter, had witnessed the shooting. There are three other children in the family, whose home is at 4108 19th st. ne.

Funeral services will be held at the Hines chapel, 2901 14th st. nw., at 1 p. m., Tuesday. Burial will be in Fort Lincoln Cemetery.

$12,000 Fire Damages D. C. Grinding Shop

Damage estimated at $12,000 resulted yesterday from a fire in the rough-grinding shop of the Teunis Opticians, 1108 16th st. nw. Most of the damage, firemen said, came from heat, smoke, and water.

Origin of the fire was not determined. The blaze was discovered about 8:30 a. m., and firemen said most of the damage occurred to grinding and other equipment. Lenses for glasses are kept in steel cabinets when operations are not in progress, and they were were not harmed.

But, officials of the company said, a number of eyeglass prescriptions were burned and it will be necessary to have them replaced. They said damage is covered by insurance.

Montgomery Chest To Hold Annual Meeting Tonight

Election of officers, bylaw changes and resolutions are on the agenda of the annual meeting of the Montgomery County Community Chest and Council tonight at 8 o'clock in the new Jewish Community Center, Meadowbrook and East-West hwy.

C. Gregg Everngam, retiring president, said that proposed revisions of the bylaws are the result of recommendations from the Chesa's planning council urging a larger policy-determining body.

Resolutions will include a request for vice presidents representing the four county geographical areas, and a citizens committee of 100 civic leaders, he said.

Health Officer Issues Annual Tick Warning

It's time to be on the lookout for ticks, carriers of Rocky Mountain spotted fever, District Health Officer Daniel L. Seckinger warned yesterday.

The disease can now be treated effectively with aureomycin and chloromycetin, he said, but it may still cause serious illness. Ticks are usually found in wooded areas or tall grass, Seckinger said. About one in 300 is infected with the disease.

Seckinger urged these precautions be taken:

(1) Be vaccinated by your physician before May 1.

(2) Inspect all parts of the body after spending any time in woods or fields. Persons working in these areas all day should look thoroughly for ticks twice a day. The ticks usually do not transmit the germ for several hours.

(3) Remove ticks from the body with tweezers, not fingers.

(4) Don't crush the tick. This may produce infection.

(5) Paint the spot from which the tick was removed with iodine or some other strong antiseptic.

Judge D. H. Kincheloe Dies of Heart Attack

David H. Kincheloe, former Democratic Representative from Kentucky and a retired judge of the United States Customs Court, died of a heart ailment at 4 a. m. yesterday at Doctors Hospital here.

Judge Kincheloe, a native of Sacramento, Ky., had lived at 4935 Hillbrook la. nw., since his retirement from the Customs Court bench in New York two years ago.

Judge Kincheloe had been a member of the court's bench 17½ years. Before that he had served 16 years as a member of Congress.

He attended colleges in Indiana and Kentucky, and at the age of 22 was elected a county attorney, becoming then the youngest such official in the State's history.

Judge Kincheloe was a member of the Metropolitan Memorial Methodist Church here, and the National Press Club.

Surviving are his wife, Mrs. Laura Statler Kincheloe, and a daughter, Mrs. James H. Davis, wife of a Navy commander now on sea duty, both of the Washington address; three brothers, Peyton W. and Robert D. Kincheloe, of Louisville, Ky., and the Rev. Raymond Kincheloe, of Uree, N. C., and two sisters, Mrs. Frank Gibson, of Greenville, Ky., and Mrs. Jennie Morgan, of Birmingham, Ala.

Services will be held at 4:30 p. m. Tuesday at the Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw. The body then will be taken to Madisonville, Ky., where services and burial will be held Friday.

The family asks that, instead of flowers, contributions be sent the Salvation Army.

Tragedy at Night

Laryngitis Kills Child In Few Hours

The three-year-old daughter of a Navy officer died unexpectedly early yesterday of a sudden attack of laryngitis.

Jane Holland

She was Jane, daughter of Lieut. Joe Holland and his wife, Waneta of 930 N. Livingston st., Arlington.

Lieutenant Holland said the child was uncomfortable and was running a slight temperature, Saturday night, so was put to bed early. About 4:30 a. m., she awakened Mrs. Holland, who took her temperature and found it was 103.

The Hollands rushed the child to the Navy Dispensary at 19th st. and Constitution ave. nw., where physicians found her throat clogged with mucus and swelling shut. Despite their efforts to clear the throat, Jane became unconscious and died shortly before 6 a. m.

An autopsy yesterday at the Naval Medical Center at Bethesda showed acute laryngitis, physicians there said. The larynx was blocked and the lungs swollen. Cultures were made to determine cause of the laryngitis, but results will not be known for more than 48 hours.

Lieutenant Holland, who is attached to the Navy Bureau of Personnel, has lived here about 18 months. The couple has one other child, William, 2 years old.

Mrs. Fishburn Dies; Bank Officer's Wife

Roanoke, Va., April 16 (AP).—Mrs. Grace Parker Fishburn of Roanoke died early today in the University of Virginia Hospital, Charlottesville.

Mrs. Fishburn was the wife of Junius Blair Fishburn, former publisher of the Roanoke Times and now chairman of the board of the First National Exchange Bank here. Her son, Junius P. Fishburn, is present publisher of the Times.

Funeral services will be conducted at 11 a. m. Monday at Green Memorial Methodist Church here with interment in Evergreen Cemetery.

Mrs. Lester Dies; Wife of Contractor

Martinsville, Va., April 16 (AP).—Mrs. Joanna Adams Lester, 74, died today at a local hospital.

She was the wife of Alvin L. Lester, retired contractor, and a member of a prominent Henry County family.

Surviving are her husband, two sons, Truman Lester of Martinsville, and John P. Lester of Washington, and four daughters, Mrs. J. M. Connelly of Dallas, Tex., Mrs. W. R. DeWitt, Mrs. H. P. Davis and Mrs. F. H. Dodson, all of Martinsville.

W. F. Birkigt Funeral Rites Slated Today

Funeral services for William F. Birkigt, 79, Georgetown native who died at his home in Berwyn, Md., Friday, will be held at 2 p. m. today at the Wise funeral home, 2900 M st. nw. Burial will be in Oak Hill Cemetery.

Mr. Birkigt became ill several months ago and has since been living with his nephew, Louis E. Mirkigt, a retired Metropolitan policeman with 32 years service on the force.

A millworker most of his life, Mr. Birkigt retired 22 years ago. For 20 of those years he lived in Abell, St. Marys County, Md. Another nephew, Charles R. Cherry of 4809 41st st. nw., an engineer for the Chesapeake & Potomac Telephone Co., also survives.

Mrs. Simpson Dies; Lived Here 66 Years

Mrs. Alice S. Simpson, 87, widow of William R. Simpson once "the oldest butter man in Washington," died yesterday at her home, 1433 Longfellow st. nw. She had been in declining health for several years.

Her husband died in 1946 after retiring a year earlier from his stand at Riggs Market, 1430 P st. nw., from which he had sold butter, cheese and eggs for 58 years.

Mrs. Simpson was a native of Nottingham, England, but lived for over 66 years in the District. She and her husband were among the first settlers in the Mount Pleasant area.

Her survivors include a son, William R. Simpson of Silver Spring; three daughters, Miss Mae E. Simpson of the home, Mrs. Henry K. Dierkoph, of 248 Quackenbos st. nw. and Mrs. C. W. West of Reno, Nev.; four grandchildren and two great grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 11 a. m. at the Hines funeral home, 2901 14th st. nw.

British Leader Starts Youth Mission Here

The president of the Christian Endeavor Union of Great Britain and Ireland launched a week-long evangelistic mission to youth here last night with a talk before 1000 young people at National City Christian Church, 14th st. and Thomas cir. nw.

Dr. Stanley A. Baker of Birmingham, England, said that too many denominations are too much interested in promoting their own "petty little youth groups," and declared churches should encourage more interdenominational and international relationships among their young people.

Two Prisoners Die, One in Police Cell

A man identified as Claude Albert Hinkel, 56, of the Gospel Mission, 810 5th st. nw., died unexpectedly yesterday morning in the central cell block at police headquarters.

Police said he had been locked up earlier on a drunk charge. About 7:30 a. m., Pvt. Velt Braziel, a jailer, said he talked to Hinkel during a routine check and Hinkel asked when he would receive coffee. A few moments later Hinkel asked for a cigarette from a prisoner in the next cell, but collapsed before he could light it.

Dr. Richard M. Rosenberg, deputy District Coroner, said after an autopsy that Hinkel died of an acute attack of a heart ailment.

At 2:20 p. m. yesterday Pvt. S. W. Howland, making a check at Seventh Precinct, found Harry O. Simmons, 66, of 6705 C st., Seat Pleasant, Md., unconscious in a cell.

An ambulance was called and when Simmons arrived at Emergency Hospital, he was pronounced dead. An autopsy is set for today.

Ford Gives $50,000 To Jewish Appeal

By The Associated Press

A $50,000 contribution by Henry Ford 2d to help the Jews in Israel, was announced yesterday as the campaign of the National Christian Committee of the United Jewish Appeal got under way.

Representative Franklin D. Roosevelt, jr. (D.-Lib., N. Y.), chairman of the Christian Committee, announced these other gifts:

John Hay Whitney, associate chairman of the committee, $10,000; Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, $3500; W. Averell Harriman, $1000; Union Electric Co. of St. Louis, Mo., $5000; Marshall Field, Chicago, $7500; Des Moines Register-Tribune, $10,000; Dr. G. A. Wrightson, New York City, $25,000; Col. Augustus Busch, Anheuser-Busch, St. Louis, $20,000; Shell Oil Co., $5000.

Spirit of Brotherhood

Henry Morgenthau, jr., general chairman of the United Jewish Appeal, characterized the contributions as a "heartwarming manifestation of the spirit of brotherhood and friendship of the American people for the democracy of Israel."

During the day's meeting, Jewish Community leaders from across the country turned in contributions raised in their areas.

Those funds raised the total received by the United Jewish Appeal so far this year to 35 million dollars, it was announced.

The money will be used for immigration and settlement in Israel, relief and rehabilitation overseas and refugee aid in this country.

Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan told the gathering that "The time will soon come when we shall have an effective Point Four Program that will enable us to cooperate with Israel along agricultural lines to the mutual benefit of both nations."

Must Not Disappear

Secretary of the Interior Oscar Chapman, another speaker, said:

"We have long ago determined that the democracies of Europe shall not be undermined. Americans cannot afford to let the democracy of Israel disappear from the world. Regardless of religious affiliation, we remember vividly, as one people, the death and suffering visited upon Jews under the brutal lashings of the dictators. We remember that we promised ourselves to erase such things from the world forever."

Contributions to the Jewish appeal, he said, will "declare to the world that the people of the United States have not forgotten."

B'nai B'rith Hears Attack On Bigotry

St. Petersburg, Fla., April 16 (Spl.).—"Bigotry is bad politics," the Florida State convention of B'nai B'rith was told today by Herman Edelsberg of Washington, legislative representative of the Anti-Defamation League.

"Bigotry will remain losing politics as long as America remains true to its democratic faith," he added.

Edelsberg named Senator Pat McCarran (D., Nev.) and Representatives John E. Rankin (D., Miss.), Ed Gossett (D., Tex.) and Clare E. Hoffman (R., Mich.) as "purveyors of hatred" in Congress.

"These men and others like them who spread disunity through racial and religious prejudice are as unrepresentative of American public opinion as they are of America's democratic ideal," he said. "The fact that their discriminatory displaced persons bill was decisively rejected by Congress is another reminder that political bigotry cannot long thrive on American soil."

According to the public opinion polls conducted for the Anti-Defamation League, the American people are becoming increasingly impatient with intolerance and discrimination, he declared.

"It is unfortunate that Congress has not yet fully caught up with public opinion in this respect," he said. "Too many Congressmen who privately deplore bigotry do nothing to fight it publicly. They think of themselves as "innocent bystanders." But morally, are they free from responsibility for the perpetuation of the discrimination they deplore? Aren't the great religious faiths agreed that he who permits evil helps to commit it?"

Whisky Seized As Police Raid 3 Bottle Clubs

A group of 18 members of the police vice squad headed by Lieut. Roy Blick, raided three after-hours bottle clubs early yesterday, confiscated whiskey, took photographs, but made no arrests.

The places raided were the Gold Key Club, 606 E st. nw.; Turf and Grid Club, 14th st., near Rhode Island ave. nw.; and the Fin and Feathers Club, 1016 14th st. nw.

Lieutenant Blick said his men went into the three places simultaneously on warrants issued by a United States Commissioner on the basis of purchases of whisky allegedly made in the three places recently by undercover men who were not members of the clubs.

He said that in each place, 12 bottles of whisky were confiscated "at random" from "bartenders' shelves" and also that police photographers took pictures extensively showing operations of the clubs. He would not comment further on the raids.

Normally, when search warrants are issued and liquor or other evidence is found, arrests are made, either of those present or the persons who made the alleged sales of liquor illegally.

Cases of a number of the after-hours bottle clubs will come up here in District Court this week on lawsuits by U. S. District Attorney George Morris Fay to revoke their charters. He seeks revocation of the charters on the ground that they are operated for profit and to evade liquor control laws, and violate charters issued to them.

Lieut. Blick said yesterday that though no arrests were made during the raids "there will be arrests later."

Asked if the raids were made to solidify evidence in lawsuits coming to court this week for revocation of charters for after-hours bottle clubs he commented:

"I prefer not to say about that."

George Morris Fay, U. S. District Attorney, has instituted suit against 11 of the after-hour clubs asking revocation of their charters on the ground they violate the nonprofit, altruistic purpose for which the clubs were incorporated.

Hoxton Resignation Breaks Tradition at Episcopal High

The Noxton family's long association with tradition-steeped Episcopal High School in Alexandria will be broken at the end of the current school year.

When A. R. Hoxton, jr., mathematics instructor and track coach at Episcopal, takes over the post of headmaster at Fairchild Country Day School, Fairfield, Conn. on July 1, it will be the first time in more than 80 years no member of his family has been connected with the Alexandria school.

Young Hoxton is the son of Dr. Archibald R. Hoxton, who retired in 1947 after serving as headmaster for 33 years.

Dr. Hoxton's father, Col. Lewellyn Hoxton, previously had been with the school since 1870, serving as associate headmaster until the year his son enrolled there.

Young Hoxton has been associated with the school as an instructor since 1947, when he emerged from the Navy with the rank of lieutenant commander. He also was a graduate of the Alexandria school, going from Episcopal to Yale, where he was an outstanding athlete.

His appointment to the Connecticut post was disclosed yesterday, along with the announcement that a new headmaster had been named for the 211-year-old Alexandria school. He is Richard P. Thomsen, 37, head of the Latin department.

Thomsen will serve as associate headmaster during the coming session with Headmaster Richard P. Williams, who is slated to retire at the end of the term.

Crippled Heroine Saved Mt. Vernon

By Martha Bray Carson

WITH the Daughters of the American Revolution meeting in Washington this week, one of the most toured shrines will be Mount Vernon.

Much has been written about the "Father of Our Country" and the home in which he lived, but little about the woman who saved this home for his country. Miss Ann Pamela Cuningham of South Carolina was the woman.

In 1816, the only daughter of Robert and Louise Byrd Cuningham was born at the family estate, Rosemont, Laurens County, S. C. The girl's education for the most part was obtained at Brahamville Female College near Columbia.

Injured as Child

WHEN a child, Ann Pamela fell from her horse, receiving a back injury from which she never recovered. As time passed her condition grew worse until she became a confirmed invalid. In 1853, her mother took her to Baltimore to see a physician in hope of relief.

On the return trip as their vessel was sailing down the Potomac past Mount Vernon and the brick tomb of George and Martha Washington, a feeling of great depression overcame Mrs. Cuningham. She was aware of the neglected condition prevailing there.

She meditated upon the end of the beautiful estate unless something might soon be done.

Mrs. Cuningham knew that in the will of John Augustine Washington he had provided for the disposal of the place to the United States, should Congress so desire. Accordingly it had been offered to Congress in 1846 for $100,000. It also had been offered to the State of Virginia, but both had refused. After these plans had failed to make the estate public property, Mrs. Cuningham realized that it was in danger of passing into the hands of speculators.

Explains Her Idea

MRS. CUNINGHAM confided her thoughts to her invalid daughter. The idea of saving Washington's home took fire at once in the mind of Miss Cuningham, and she began what was to be her life work. First she learned from John Augustine Washington the amount he would take for it. From Rosemont she began to send out appeals, fixing $200,000 as her goal.

She wrote forceful, appealing letters to the women of the South. Her first public letter was published in the Charleston (S. C.) Mercury in December, 1853. She signed herself "A Southern Matron." Later she wrote under her own name.

She formed an association with headquarters in Richmond. After three years the enterprise, which started out as sectional, soon became national. Washington Irving sent $500. School children sent pennies.

In 1856, Miss Cuningham learned that Edward Everett, that "graceful and powerful orator" of Massachusetts was to lecture in Richmond. She traveled by boat, in her invalid's chair to that city for an interview. She succeeded in her plan and Everett promised to give her all the proceeds from his lectures for a stated period.

The work of handling and acknowledging the funds became very heavy, and at times her feeble strength was taxed severely. However, by 1858 the desired amount was in hand. By then a great difficulty arose. John Augustine Washington refused to sell. Miss Cuningham made a new journey to Mount Vernon to see and reason with him. She found that his objection to sell was unshakeable. The story goes that she was borne back to the landing, a helpless, broken-hearted woman.

But the boat had sailed without her. She was forced to spend the night at Mount Vernon. This gave her a new opportunity to talk with Mr. Washington, but he was not swayed in his decision when she left him for the night.

But before she departed next day he had agreed to sell.

Organization Formed

In 1858 an organization was formed called the "Ladies Mount Vernon Association," and Miss Cuningham was made the regent.

In 1861 the Civil War came, bringing many reverses to Miss Cuningham and her lovely Rosemont. For seven years she was prevented from visiting Mount Vernon. However, she saw to it that a reliable caretaken was in charge. During the war it was recognized as neutral ground. It was not until 1868 that Miss Cuningham could return and actively direct the work of restoration.

The women of the association met there with their sewing kits. They cleaned and repaired the old carpets, lace curtains and draperies, and mended old furniture. The garden in which Washington had expressed the desire to plant every possible kind of tree and shrub that grew in the Potomac vicinity, was not neglected.

Miss Cuningham directed the work until 1872, at which time her health failed completely. She resigned as regent, June 1, 1874. In her farewell address she said, "Ladies, the home of Washington is in your charge, see to it that you keep it the home of Washington. Let no irreverent hand desecrate it with the fingers of progress."

On May 1, 1875, just a little more than a year after resigning as regent, she died at her home, Rosemont. She is buried in the First Presbyterian Churchyard in Columbia.

Tea and Linen Shower to Aid Sibley Memorial

The annual tea and linen shower for the benefit of Sibley Memorial Hospital will be held in Rust Hall, 1150 North Capitol st. Thursday from 2 to 4 p. m. More than 3000 pieces of linen donated by the 48 Methodist churches and friends of the hospital will be on exhibition. Decorations will be arranged by Jelleff's.

The ministers' wives and officers of the guild will preside over the tea tables. A program of special music will be given by Justin Lawrie. Mrs. Fred E. Blood, president of the Woman's Guild, will preside.

Commission Aide Will Address Club

The monthly meeting of the Woman's Club of Chevy Chase on Wednesday at noon brings another outstanding speaker to the program planned for the club by Mrs. James G. McManaway. The speaker will be Senora Esther Neira de Calvo., executive secretary, Inter-American Commission of Women.

The invocation will be pronounced by the Rev. Clifford H. Richmond, pastor of the Chevy Chase Methodist Church. Piano selections will be played by Rita Preismann. Mrs. Arthur T. Davenport, president, will preside.

The literature section of the club will hold its April meeting on Friday at 2 p. m. Catherine Turlington, author of "Three to Make Ready," will talk and read from her book. The poetry group will present readings by several authors. The hostess will be Mrs. G. Leslie Callaway.

"Roses and the Home Gardener" will be the subject of a talk by Charles C. Montgomery, president of the Potomac Rose Society. The talk will be illustrated by colored slides of local rose gardens presented by Mrs. Neils J. Hansen. Club members and their friends are invited.

1st Methodist Women's Meeting Set for Tuesday

The first national gathering of Methodist women from local churches to appraise their mission program in the light of changing world conditions will be held in the Music Hall in Cleveland, Ohio, April 18 through 21. The meeting will also seek means to insure the application of human rights on a world-wide basis.

The conference is the quadrennial assembly of the Woman's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist Church, largest dues-paying women's organization in the nation.

Findings and recommendations of the assembly will serve to blueprint a new international program sponsored by Methodist women in the fields of missions and human rights.

Three thousand five hundred delegates from all 48 States are expected to attend. They will represent the 1,396,527 members of the Woman's Society. The organization supports hospitals, schools, settlement houses, and rural centers here and in 25 foreign countries. Members contribute more than five million dollars a year for these projects.

Monday Dinner

Minute Steaks
Mashed Potatoes
Snap Beans, Savory Style
Buttered Carrots
Bread and Butter
Combination Fruit Salad
Beverage

Snap Beans, Savory Style: Ingredients: 1 pound snap beans, ½ cup boiling water, 3 tablespoons mayonnaise, 2 tablespoons cream, 1 tablespoon cider vinegar, 1 teaspoon sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon onion salt, freshly-ground pepper to taste.

Method: Wash the snap beans with a vegetable brush in cold water; cut off ends and slice diagonally into ½-inch pieces. Put in a 6 to 8 cup saucepan with the boiling water and cook rapidly, covered, until tender-crisp—about 10 minutes. Drain off any small amount of water remaining. Add remaining ingredients and mix thoroughly. Reheat gently, but do not allow sauce to boil. Or chill and serve cold, mixing well just before serving. Makes 4 servings.

Jewish Home Group Plans Fashion Show

Little Hot Cheese Dabs Persuade Guests to Linger—Here's a Recipe From New Book of Savory Tidbits

"THOSE LITTLE hot cheese dabs" are usually the hit of the party when included on the appetizer tray.

Recipes for a raft of them—as well as other delectable cheese dishes—are found in a brand new volume "The Cheese Cookbook," by Mary Dahnke (A. A. Wyn, publisher.)

For the many Ask Anne readers who have asked questions about hot canapes, here is one of her recipes. Miss Dahnke says these appetizers are designed to flirt with—never to shock—the palate.

HOT CHEESE PUFFIES

2 cups Holland rusk crumbs
4 eggs
½ teaspoon Worcestershire sauce
½ teaspoon salt
½ pound sharp process cheddar, shredded

Mix three quarters of the crumbs with the slightly beaten egg yolks. Add the seasonings and cheese. Fold in the stiffly beaten egg whites. Using a tablespoonful for each puff, shape into balls, coat with remaining rusk crumbs. Fry in deep hot fat (heated to 350 degrees Fahrenheit) until lightly browned. Drain on brown paper and serve hot. This recipe makes 36 puffs.

DEAR ANNE:

Can you give me detailed instructions on ironing a shirt properly? I have been trying to do my husband's shirts at home, but always seem to do a poor job of it. C. W., Silver Spring.

Here's a step-by-step technique that you can use on pajama jackets, as well as various types of shirts: Place the shirt at left end of ironing board (the small end) and unroll so tail falls over far side of board. Draw out right sleeve and spread flat on board. Turn sleeve so placket side is up, with placket in center. Iron inside of cuff, and up into sleeve.

Without disturbing sleeve, turn cuff over and iron outside of cuff. Return to original position. Slide iron alongside of board to center of sleeve. Iron along shoulder seam. Switch iron to left hand. Iron down sleeve and into gathers at cuff. Stretch seams to prevent puckering. Turn sleeve and iron other side.

Iron yoke next, turning it flat down against back of shirt. Then lay collar flat on board and iron across from point to point, stretching tight. Next, repeat sleeve ironing process on left sleeve. Then flatten back of collar and iron point to point.

Iron left part of back next, then draw left front panel over back and iron it. Take buttonhole band first of all, ironing first back then front. Repeat process on right hand side of shirt.

Now that entire shirt is ironed, mold collar over neck band with fingers. Fold sleeves over shirt in back, then fold garment lengthwise in thirds. Next fold in crosswise in third, with collar on top. Now you're all through! Time it should have taken: 4½ minutes!

DEAR ANNE:

As I am to be married soon, I would like to attend a class in cooking—a practical one. Can you tell me where I can find one here in the District, preferably in the downtown area? S. S., Washington

There's a new cooking school just opened here that seems to offer just what you'd have in mind. It is located at 1711 I st. nw., has special classes for brides—not to mention bachelors—and demonstration classes. Prices are $30 for 10 classes, plus $10 for the cost of the food. Subjects covered include the buying and care of foods, preparation and serving of complete dinners, use of latest kitchen equipment, art of table setting, serving, hostess techniques, and frozen foods. For more information, telephone Executive 0265.

DEAR ANNE:

Do you have a good recipe for corning beef and cooking it after it is corned? Mary Coutts, 2224 39th pl. nw.

Here are corning instructions, as sent us by another reader, J. H. D.

HOME CORNED BEEF

1½ teaspoons dark brown sugar for each pound meat.
1 piece of saltpeter the size of a pea for each 4 pounds meat
1 quart water (more if needed)

Combine ingredients above and simmer to dissolve salt. Cool. Have stone crock large enough to hold meat and brine (covering meat 1 inch). Place meat in crock, pour cold brine over it and enough extra water (if needed) to cover meat. Weight down meat with old plate and scrubbed stone, glass fruit jar filled with water, or something of the sort. Use no metals. Set to stand in cool place. Three days is the minimum for light corning, five or seven for heavier. Meat will not get saltier after the long time and, unless kept in refrigerator or very cold place, should be used right away. Cover crock.

Anne answers questions through her column only. Address letters to "Anne," Room 408, The Washington Post, Washington 4, D. C. Names and addresses of questioners will be used, unless specifically requested otherwise.

PETUNIA!

Another thing
That's good to do
Is washing out
The inside, too!

Right, Petunia! The interior of your tea kettle needs an occasional cleaning, too. If you'll boil 1 cup of vinegar and 3 cups of water in it, it helps remove that unpleasant hard water scale.

Pageantry Will Mark Return of Bal Boheme Tonight After 11 Years

By Elizabeth Maguire

CAPITALITES will dance tonight from 10 to 2 at the Bal Boheme. Spectacular costumes, lively music, and celebrities by the dozens will turn the ballroom of the Statler Hotel into a colorful pageant. Two orchestras will provide continuous music, and supper will be served at midnight.

Sponsored by the Arts Club of Washington, the dance will be given for the first time in 11 years. To make up for lost time, the Bal Boheme this year will be fabulous, pretentious, glamorous. Characters such as nomads, muses and interplanetary travelers will participate in the pageant, and there'll be a display of posters by Mrs. Fred Preu, depicting the famous women of the ages.

Boxholders for this gala event include Mr. and Mrs. Charles S. Dewey, Mrs. Persifor Spilsbury, Mrs. Duncan Philips, Mrs. McCook Knox, Mr. and Mrs. A. Burke Summers, Charles Lownsbery, Mrs. Blake Clark, Dr. and Mrs. John M. Orem, Mrs. Hattie E. Burdette and James Window.

Washingtonians acting as assistants at the ball include Mrs. Felix de Weldon, Mrs. Clinton R. Robinson, Mrs. Randall H. Hagner, Mrs. James McSherry Wimsatt, Mrs. Blake Clark, H. Parr Johnson and Mrs. Joseph Miller.

MR. and Mrs. Francis Biddle and Senator and Mrs. Hubert H. Humphrey shared honors yesterday at a large reception given by Mrs. Gifford Pinchot at her home on Rhode Island ave. The occasion celebrated the election of Mr. Biddle as new national chairman of Americans for Democratic Action. He succeeds Senator Humphrey, who retired as chairman at the ADA convention held at the Shoreham Hotel March 31, April 1 and 2.

Mrs. Pinchot, who is a member of the national board of the ADA, received at the party with her four guests of honor between the hours of 5 and 7 p. m. Several hundred attended.

Parties, Small and Large

THERE were a number of small parties around town yesterday and some not so small. Mrs. Henry F. Grady, wife of the United States Ambassador to Greece, lives constantly at party pitch on her visit home. Every day something is given in her honor, and yesterday it was a dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Livesay. Today it will be a tea given by Mrs. Edwin G. Nourse.

Miss Elene Essary and John Gill, who will marry on Saturday, were honored at a cocktail party given by Mr. Gill's brother-in-law and sister, Mr. and Mrs. William B. Kerkham, jr. Mr. Kerkham will be best man in the wedding.

Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Buchanan, jr., invited 100 friends in for cocktails at their home between the hours of 5 and 7. Among the guests were many friends of Mrs. Buchanan's father, Dr. William J. Hale, who is visiting here from Midland, Mich.

A cocktail party for about 100 was also given by Lieut. Col. and Mrs. John P. Crocker, who entertained at MacKenzie Hall, Fort Belvoir, for military friends.

Mr. and Mrs. George W. Offutt 3d, gave a reception between 5 and 7 yesterday at their house in Massachusetts Avenue Park. Nearly 200 guests attended.

Dinner at Congressional Club

A DINNER for eight was given by Mr. and Mrs. Harold Vincent at the Congressional Club. Mrs. Max T. Smith was honor guest. Others were Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Manning, Miss Elizabeth Cox, Mrs. Charles Moran and Harry Karr. Mrs. Smith is in Washington visiting her mother, Mrs. Llewellyn Goode.

A luncheon hostess yesterday was Mrs. William S. Hill, who entertained for Mrs. Richard P. Smead of Boulder, Colo., formerly of Washington. The party was given at Mrs. Hill's home in Alexandria. In the company were Mrs. James E. Palmer, jr., Mrs. Richard Heinl, Mrs. Fred Penniman, Mrs. Marthena Traynham, Mrs. Jacqueline Lewis and Mrs. William Boesse.

Miss Hunt to Talk On Gunston Hall

Miss Virginia Livingston Hunt, one of the six regents at large for the National Society of Colonial Dames of America, will speak on "George Mason and Gunston Hall" at a meeting of the Washington Club at 11 a. m. Tuesday.

One of the outsanding houses of the United States, Gunston Hall was the home of George Mason when he wrote the Declaration of Rights. It is located on U. S. No. 1, 25 miles south of Washington and is open to the public for the first time this year. Louis Hertle, who purchased the property in 1912, brought about its restoration and gave it to the State of Virginia as a national shrine.

GW Women Will Attend Meeting

Miss Ruth Atwell, director of women's athletics, and Miss Helen Lawrence, associate professor of physical education for women at George Washington University, will participate in meetings of the American Association for Health, Physical Education and Recreation meeting in Dallas, Tex., April 18-21.

Miss Atwell will attend legislative board meetings of the association's national section on women's athletics. She is public relations chairman of the section. Miss Lawrence, who is national secretary of the association, will also officiate as presiding officer of the women's national official rating committee.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Gordon Cissna of Kansas City, Kans., announce the engagement of their daughter, Kathleen Louise, to James Earl Settle, son of Mrs. Forgraves Settle of Fort Thomas, Ky.

Miss Cissna is a graduate of Maryville (Tenn.) College and a veteran of 2½ years with the Spars. She is now employed by the Agriculture Department.

Her fiance was graduated from Miami University, Oxford, Ohio, and served during the war with the Marine Corps. The wedding will take place June 10.

Provoost—Kellen

Announcement is made by Mr. and Mrs. William R. Provoost of Arlington, Va., of the engagement of their daughter, Sarah Steuart, to George D. Kellen, jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. G. D. Kellen of Boston, Mass.

Both Miss Provoost and her fiance are employed in Stamford, Conn. She is a graduate of Randolph-Macon Woman's College, Lynchburg, Va., where she was a member of Kappa Alpha Theta fraternity.

Mr. Kellen is a graduate of Northeastern University in Boston and an Army veteran. The wedding is planned for July.

Jobe Says... Exclamation Point The Red Bag

If you love red, and yet have hesitated to wear one of the popular red coats, you can have your "touch of red" this spring in a bright red bag.

At long last, the bag makers have really bright red leather to use—red calf, red pin seal, red patent leather, red saddle, red kip—all the leathers you might want, to mention nothing of gay red fabrics as faille and shantung, and bright red straws as well.

Nonpartisan Crime Probe Senator's Aim

By Chalmers M. Roberts
Post Reporter

Estes Kefauver, the freshman Senator from Tennessee who is expected to boss the Senate's crime investigation, is determined to run the probe on a strictly nonpartisan basis.

He is quite aware that Republicans are ready to attack the Democratic leadership's plan for a special five-man committee, headed by Kefauver, on the grounds it excludes two GOP Senators who would like to have a hand in the investigation—Donnell (Mo.) and Ferguson (Mich.).

Kefauver said he would hate to see the special committee approved by a strictly party vote. But if it is, he is determined to show the Republicans it won't be run on a partisan basis.

Attorney General McGrath is due to testify today before a Senate Commerce subcommittee on a bill to aid the States in coping with organized gambling and bookmaking by denying the use of interstate comunications — telephone, telegraph and radio—for such activities.

The full Commerce Committee already has reported out a bill to ban interstate shipment of slot machines and Chairman Johnson (D., Colo.) is pressing for its passage at this session of Congress.

Action on the proposed special committee is expected this week, probably as soon as the Senate finishes consideration of the rivers and harbors bill now under debate.

Seretse Pays Temporary Visit to Wife

Serowe, Bechuanaland, South Africa, April 16 (AP). — Seretse Khama came home today on a temporary visit to his white wife and his black Bamangwato tribesmen, amid tears, cheers and kisses.

His wife—the former London stenographer, Ruth Williams—ran 500 yards, half sobbing, half laughing, over rough sand tracks into the arms of the Bamangwato chief. She is expecting a baby in June.

"Pula, Pula!" (Welcome, welcome) cried grizzled tribal elders, as they watched the Khamas embrace under the starry African night sky.

Ruth had not seen her husband since he went to London three months ago to hear Britain was going to banish him from his tribal homeland for five years because of the fuss his marriage stirred up.

Seretse had driven 300 miles to Serowe from Lobatsi to be with his wife and people for only five days.

He reached his mud hut capital about an hour after midnight, when the brief visit officially began. He was told by British authorities he would risk immediate expulsion if he sought in any way to convene or address any meetings of his tribesmen.

The Khamas strolled slowly from the truck to their home.

Hundreds of Seretse's supporters had moved into Serowe, hoping to give him a huge welcome on his arrival here. But all was quiet in Serowe today. The British had multiplied the strength of the local security force more than 13 times.

Tin-hatted policemen from neighboring territories carried rifles and machine guns as they patrolled the Serowe streets.

Meanwhile, Ruth has curtly rejected a formal offer by the British to provide medical attention during her approaching confinement. She sent a short answer saying she had "full confidence" in her present Negro physician, Dr. D. Moikongoa, and added:

"The offer is just another effort to get me out of Seretse's reserve."

Study of Virginia Segregation Set

Albert A. Carretta, Arlington attorney, was named chairman of a committee to study segregation practices in Virginia yesterday, at the closing sessions of the annual convention of the Catholic War Veterans of Virginia in Alexandria.

Other members of the committee will be named later by Capt. Arthur L. Jackson, State commander.

Hearings Set On Anti-Union Action Charges

By Sam Stavisky
Post Reporter

A three-man Senate subcommittee will conduct a series of on-the-spot hearings this week in an investigation of charges that Southern employers are intimidating union workers and smashing unions.

The hearings, scheduled for Rome, Ga., April 20 and 21 and for Anderson, S. C., April 22, will be conducted by Chairman James E. Murray (D., Mont.) of the Senate Labor Committee's subcommittee on management-labor relations, and two associates, Senators Matthew M. Neely (D., W. Va.) and Wayne Morse (R., Oreg.).

Senators Robert A. Taft (R., Ohio) and Forrest C. Donnell (R., Mo.), who are members of the subcommittee, have notified the chairman of their inability to participate in the Southern hearings, but will send Tom Schroyer, a minority staff aide, along as their observer.

New Findings On Leukemia Reported

Two new findings by doctors in search for a cure of leukemia, the fatal "blood cancer," were reported yesterday to the American Association for Cancer Research, at Atlantic City, N. J.

1. Dr. L. W. Law, geneticist with the National Cancer Insititute, Bethesda, Md., reported on animal studies linking the thymus, little-known gland in the chest, with leukemia's progress.

2. Another team of research workers from NCI and the University of California Medical School told of the discovery of a vital lung filter for blood cells in the human lungs.

Thymus Removal Helpful

Dr. Law reported that with three different strains of mice that usually die of spontaneous leukemia he found that total removal of the thymus prevented the disease in most of the animals. In the others, onset of leukemia was postponed and the average span greatly increased.

The effects were obtained only if the gland, which is located just under the upper end of the breastbone, was removed from young mice, before any sign of leukemia appeared. Once the disease had begun, he reported, removal of the gland had no effect.

Moreover, Dr. Law reported, when the thymus was removed and a small bit transplanted to another part of the body the animal developed leukemia just as though the entire gland were in its original position.

The experiments showed, he concluded, that though not necessarily the cause of leukemia, the thymus may serve as a bridge between the leukemic stimulus and the disease.

Thymus Function Unknown

Doctors do not know what function, if any, the thymus has in man. Birds whose thymus has been removed lay eggs without shells, but if fed thymus resume laying normal eggs. In man and other mammals, the thymus is apparently a vestige from remote ancestors and its removal causes no clear-cut body change.

Discovery of the lung filter for white blood cells, it was reported, was made in dramatic experiments which hooked up the blood flow between two humans, one with leukemia and the other free of the disease.

It was found, the doctors reported, that the lungs of the disease-free blood-exchange donor removed excess white cells from the blood of the leukemia patient. Quick, but temporary, relief followed in many cases for the patient, with no apparent harm to the donor, they said.

Made by Doctors

The blood-exchange studies were made by Drs. Howard A. Bierman, R. L. Byron, jr., and Jonathan T. Lanham of the Laboratory of Experimental Oncology, NCI, and University of California Medical School in San Francisco.

The finding, Dr. Bierman said, gives a whole new concept about leukemia. In leukemias where white blood cells flood the patient's body, the lung filter mechanism which should destroy them is apparently faulty, he said.

Most treatments for leukemia have been directed at stopping the overproduction of white blood cells. Now, said Dr. Bierman, new treatment may be found to adjust the lung filter, or make it work better, so that people with leukemia could live with their disease.

Sesqui Theme Of Religious Leaders Here

The idea that America's greatness was built on moral principles was expressed yesterday by religious leaders in sermons and youth rallies saluting Washington's Sesquicentennial celebration.

There also was a warning from the Most Rev. Lawrence J. Shehan, auxiliary bishop of Baltimore, of the danger that we may "dwell too much on the mistakes and failures which have attended the efforts of our country" since the war.

Speaking at a rally for 600 Catholic college seniors, Bishop Shehan said a country which is truly great knows how to profit by its mistakes and to turn its difficulties into advantages.

The Most Rev. Patrick A. O'Boyle, Archbishop of Washington, presided at the rally, held at St. Matthew's Cathedral in connection with the opening of Washington's 150th anniversary.

At the Keller Memorial Lutheran Church the Rev. Dr. O. Frederick Nolde, associate secretary of the World Council of Churches, warned of a growing secularism and complacency.

Taking the theme, "Freedom Under God," the Rev. Dr. Henry W. Snyder, pastor of St. Paul's Lutheran Church, warned freedom must be paid for by voting for the best men possible, by serving our community and country unselfishly, by cultivating the seeds of democracy and by keeping true faith alive.

The Rev. Philip Gordon Scott, pastor of the Westmoreland Congregational Church, declared the heritage of the United States consists of a moral order before which all men have stood on the footing of equality.

The Rev. Carl Health Kopf, at the First Congregational Church, said: "When men in public and private life cannot be bought for any price except the truth, when personal honesty is more honored than expediency then our city approach the City of God."

D. C. Democrats Urged To Get Out County Vote

Voteless District Democrats can help the party by aiding with registering and getting out the vote in surrounding areas, party workers were told yesterday.

Miss Vivian V. Simpson, Rockville attorney and Maryland's first woman secretary of state, speaking at a Sunday breakfast of the District Democratic Club in the Women's National Democratic Clubhouse, 1527 New Hampshire ave. nw., said Washington members should "form as Minute Men."

Joseph B. Simpson, jr., her brother, law partner, and vice chairman of the Montgomery County Democratic State Central Committee, spoke briefly at the breakfast, at which Mrs. Anna Roach of Bethesda, president of the county Democratic Women's Club was a guest of honor.

Man Lurking in Lobby Steals Woman's Purse

Miss Yolanda Reid, 24, of 1867 California st. nw., reported to police that her purse was snatched shortly before 4 a. m. yesterday by a man who apparently stood waiting in the apartment lobby at that address.

She said she struggled with him and believed she scratched his face, but that he escaped. She said the purse contained $8.

Man Playing the Typewriter

Charles J. V. Murphy of Life mag lives at Palm Beach with his family, in a house adjacent to Robert R. Young, where the Duke and Duchess of Windsor stay . . . Next May 22, Life will start: "The Woman I Love," a series of articles by the Duke of Windsor, but ghosted by Murphy . . . Murphy has the lush assignment of Life; he and his entire family move wherever the Windsors move . . . When the Life material runs, Putnam's will publish the whole thing as a book . . . The column hasn't been able to confirm the following, but learns there is a "royal prerogative" permitting the Duke to transfer his pounds into dollars whenever he desires.

Winchell

Arthur Meets The Critics.

MP Michael Foote complained that the casting of an American actress as Queen Victoria in a forthcoming British film "is one of the greatest insults to the British Empire."

Insult, my foote!

The New York Herald Trib. reports: "Flagstad's few New York appearances have been limited to recitals, some of which have been picketed by groups who object because she continued to live in Norway under the Nazi regime."

Any school of journalism would flunk a student for such reporting: The madame's New York appearances were picketed by WAR VETERAN GROUPS WHICH OBJECTED BECAUSE SHE SANG FOR NAZIS.

Flash! The Encyclopedia Britannica psychoanalyzes baseball! It contains this observation: "Baseball belongs to the extensive genus of civilized athletic competitions stemming from the primitive play-urge to whack a fragment of rock about the place with a club."

Oh, pistachios.

Joseph P. Kamp says he is not anti-Semitic . . . If he says it loud enough, he's liable to lose all his backers.

Paradise must be where everybody has the last laugh—and there is nothing more delightful than enjoying one, if you happen to be one of the New Yorker mag's targets . . . That weekly once ran a series about this column, which echoed the familiar deceitful hokum about "people who publish gossip" . . . You know the theme. Oh, those terrible gossip columnists.

This is an orchid? ? ?

Russ Brown, the mc of "The Golden Game" (ABC-TV Sunday), tells of the time he was part of Fallon and Brown . . . The act was polishing off the rough edges at Proctor's 5th Avenue—and clicking big . . . J. J. Murdock, one of B. F. Keith's toughest execs, sent for Russ and said: "I caught your act. How about signing up with the Keith circuit?" . . . The happy actor said: "That's fine; our salary is $125 a week" . . . To which Murdock sarcasm'd: "What's the name of your quartet?"

Overheard at the Stork Club: "I can't understand why Truman had to bring Harry Vaughan to Florida with him."

A confrere quotes a contribber "who found this somewhere: 'He who stoops to conquer exposes himself for a kick' " . . . Seven years ago this column quipped: "Goering has discovered that when you stoop to conquer you make an easy target for a kick in the pants" . . . What happened to the oldie about the 85-year-old chap attending funeral services where someone said: "Gee, it hardly pays for you to go home"? . . . It was Basil Rathbone's opening gag on NBC's Show of Shows, and he actually said that he actually heard it at a funeral. The gag is older than Basil . . . Fred Allen may not be on teevy, but his old jokes are . . . Allen Young, for example, on his debut used one Allen got a laugh with ten years ago. About the time he was a paddler in an olive factory—"I paddled slow pimentos into olives!"

B. Cerf confessed: "When I became a publisher, I frankly selected Mr. Knopf as my model!"

Fine career. He starts out imitating another publisher, and winds up cerfing gags. His biography should be written on carbon paper.

Craig Thompson's book, "The Police State" (Dutton), declares agreement is not possible with Russia. Their main objective is world slavery and they consider compromise "only a strategem, a device to fool the enemy and gain a more advantageous position."

Hallet Abend's "Half Slave, Half Free" (Bobbs-Merrill) warns Russia will only be stopped by superior force.

In short, this column was condemned for stating in the paper what is now confirmed in books. History doesn't repeat itself—it just repeats what was in the newspapers first.

Communist Harry Bridges got 5 years. In short, it's democracy's latest V for Victory.

John J. McCloy is the latest gullible to gulp hook, line and swastika the idea of making Germany a full-fledged ally. And United States correspondents report that Nazi officers are so certain Germany will soon have an army—they have dusted off their boots for another goose-stepping spree.

Apparently McCloy never read a historian's classic warning: "Beware of the German General Staff mentality. They believe that the human race begins with the lieutenant!"

The wags now refer to the State Dept. as the Striped Panty Set.

Francis and the Japanese Air Raid

Synopsis: Yesterday Francis unmasked the beautiful spy. He stepped on her foot and she swore in German, then when she started to shoot the lieutenant, Francis kicked her right into prison. The lieutenant once again had to lie his way out of the neuropsychiatric ward for saying a mule could talk.

By David Stern

The phone on my desk tinkled.

"Lieutenant," said a voice, "this is Captain Hedrick."

The captain's voice was belligerent. "We send a flight of pigeons out on a routine training mission. One of them comes back with a note tied to one leg. Very clumsily tied, too. The note is addressed to you."

"But I don't know anybody who would send me notes by carrier pigeon."

"Ever hear of a person named Fran?"

My heart went down like a Zero with three P-40s on its tail.

"Yes, sir," I said.

"All right, lieutenant," he said. "I suppose I have been a little abrupt with you. Come on, now just between ourselves, what is she? Blonde or brunette?

"She isn't either."

"Native girl?"

"I'm afraid you don't understand, sir," I said.

The captain's voice was formal again. "Very well, lieutenant. I'll read you the note this time. But if this ever happens again I'll bring charges. You understand?"

"Yes, sir."

"The note reads: 'Miss you. Please terminate interminable separation. Vital to our well-being. All my love.' Signed 'Fran'."

The captain hung up.

Francis was tethered beneath the banyan tree, stamping and switching his tail in his usual bedraggled state.

"You look angry," Francis said. "In fact, you look furious."

"I am furious. Why did you have to word the note as though it was a billet-doux?"

"Billet-doux! My, my. Cute, wasn't it?"

"You'll probably have me kicked out of the Army," I said.

"Lieutenant, have you ever wondered why the Japanese haven't bombed this installation?"

"I guess they couldn't slip through our fighter and anti-aircraft screens."

"No," said Francis, "they just didn't have airports within range. But they finished building two last week."

"What are you trying to tell me?"

"Unless some drastic action is taken, and quickly, this headquarters is going to be blown off the map."

"When?"

"Tomorrow at sixteen thirty-five . . . that's four thirty-five to you . . . four waves of twenty medium bombers each will fly out of the sun. They'll be echeloned starting at two thousand feet. The first two will ground strafe and drop fragmentation and incendiary bombs. The second two will come in with demolitions."

"How did you find out?"

"Lieutenant, do you trust me?"

"Of course I trust you, Francis . . . But I stilll . . ."

"Later, lieutenant. You have no time to waste."

My colonel listened quietly. He made hasty notes on a large pad.

"How did you come into possession of this information?"

I must have blanched.

"I can't tell you, sir," I said.

"You can't what?"

"I can't tell you, sir."

"Well, if the information you just gave me isnt' right, I'll bust you so low that, by the Great God Jupiter, you'll have to use a telescope to look up to a buck private!"

"Yes, sir."

The next day the whole headquarters was in a turmoil. Slit trenches were being dug, sand bags placed in front of doors, revetments erected. Two regiments of anti-aircraft had been moved in and were excavating gun positions at every suitable spot.

I wandered through this welter of activity in a state of high mental fever. Each time I saw a gun jockeyed into position, I muttered, "God help me . . ."

It was after 4 o'clock when I pulled the jeep to a stop beside the banyan tree. I hopped out and slapped the mule on the flank.

"It's after 4 o'clock," I said. "4 o'clock!"

"Usually is about this time in the afternoon," Francis said. "What of it?"

"You're sure of the information you gave me, aren't you, Francis?"

"I suspect it's right," said the mule, rolling his eyes around.

"You what!"

"I said I suspect the information I gave you is right."

"Suspect! Suspect!" I meant to yell the words but my voice emerged a squeak.

"Don't get excited, lieutenant. It's much better to have a false alarm than to be caught napping."

"Where did you get the information about the air raid?"

Francis rolled his eyes again. "A little bird told me."

"Heaven help me!" I glanced at my watch. "It's 4:30."

"Time passes, doesn't it?"

I looked into the setting sun. Never had there been a more peaceful Burma afternoon.

"Lieutenant, you look pale."

"I'm scared," I said. "I'm scared right on through and out the other side."

"That the Japs will come or that they won't?" asked Francis.

"Calm yourself, lieutenant. Calm yourself."

Far in the distance there was a humming, soft as a summer breeze. Then I saw them, a group of dots just above the haze sweeping in from the west.

"They're coming!" I yelled. "Francis, they're coming!"

From the clouds above came a sound like a swarm of angry bees. It grew louder.

"There are planes up in those clouds," I yelled. I was shaking from head to foot.

"Well, what'd you think we'd have up there," asked Francis, "ducks?"

"I can see the second wave of Japs! . . . There's the third! . . . Two thousand feet, coming in from the west. Just the way you said. Man, oh, men, are they coming!"

Suddenly, out of a cloud bank I saw a black spot appear. It was shooting straight down with the whine of an enraged hornet. A tenth of a second later another spot appeared, then another. The air was filled with them.

"Our planes! Our planes! Look at 'em dive!" I was dancing around like a crazy man.

Now even the mule was excited. Both ears were standing straight up and there was a wild gleam in the brown eyes.

"Hot ziggety!" Francis spat. "Look at those babies come down. Here we go, boys! Here we go!"

"They're shooting!" I yelled. I had my arms around Francis' neck hanging on for dear life. The animal was tossing his head and I was bouncing all over the field.

"Kiss my Derby-winning great-aunt Regret!" screamed Francis. "Are those Nips going to get the struts knocked out of them!"

The sky was speckled with exploding Japanese planes. Bursts of flame. Puffs of smoke. Still out of the clouds above poured a stream of American fighters. They were drops of water in a cascade, coming, coming, coming.

"Six right behind them!" I yelled.

"What a show!"

"Look, in the center. Two of them. They've broken through!"

The ground shook. From the camp, a sheet of flame shot into the sky as the regiments of anti-aircraft opened with every gun they had.

The two Jap planes seemed to run into a wall. One moment, they were flying, fighting aircraft. The next, the sky was filled with pieces of junk.

"Right on the button!" I yelled.

"Smacked 'em to kingdom come!" bellowed Francis. "For the love of mud, hang off my neck, you're ruining me."

As suddenly as the battle had commenced, it stopped. Where a fleet of Japanese planes had been was only smoke, cruising American fighters, and the red rays of the setting sun.

I sank down on the grass. Francis was covered with a sheen of sweat.

"I never saw you excited before, Francis," I said.

"You never saw a show like that either."

I struggled to my feet.

"Francis," I said, "I'll never be able to thank you."

"You'll probably be something of a hero back at camp," said Francis.

"I'm so pleased I could kiss you," I said.

The mule looked around at me, head lowered and eyes raised. "Hold on to yourself, I've had a lot of things happen to me in this mule's army. But there's a limit, lieutenant. There's a limit!"

(Tomorrow: Francis plumbs hidden depths.)

Hope Debut Shows Bob's a Tyro in TV

By John Crosby

BOB HOPE'S first invasion of television, a 1½-hour show called "Star Spangled Revue" on Easter Sunday was a historic occasion for a number of reasons. Hope was movieland's No. 1 box office attraction last year. He is Hollywood's first major star to take on anything so ambitious on television. (Virtually all other movie stars are forbidden to go anywhere near the dreadful thing.) "Star Spangled Revue" cost $135,000, far and away the highest cost of a single television show, and Hope's cut was $40,000, also a record.

In the light of these impressive figures and facts, the Hope debut fell rather seriously short of expectations. However, if you looked on it simply as 1½ hours of entertainment at the tail-end of Easter, it was very pleasant, tuneful and engaging. And Frigidaire, which picked up that enormous tab, may even have got its money's worth. NBC, which advertised the show far and wide, feels that Hope may well have attracted the largest audience ever to witness a television show.

Langour Advised

BESIDES the great man himself, "Star Spangled Revue" offered, as its stellar attractions, Beatrice Lillie, Dinah Shore and Douglas Fairbanks; as its lesser attractions, Hal LeRoy, the Mexico City Boys Choir, a boogie-woogie pianist and a lot of decorative ladies. And, as its prime drawback, the price of admission, it subjected the audience to the interiors and exteriors of more refrigerators, washing machines, stoves and mangles than I like to think about.

It was a curiously subdued, almost apologetic Hope who appeared at the outset, attired in cutaway and Ascot tie, to venture the first joke. ("This is what Grover Whalen wears to bed. A lot of performers have died in television and if that happens to me I want to be ready for it.")

Hope's pace was, by comparison with the radio Hope, languid,. At one point he confided that he had been advised to be more casual and relaxed than in radio and, throughout the show, Hope appeared to be trying to find some middle ground between movie technique and radio; to discover, in short, what television consisted of exactly. He never quite succeeded, and it seems obvious that he has a lot to learn from such lesser though far more television-experienced comedians as Sid Caesar.

It was a pretty good show, all told, though hardly an inspired one. Miss Lillie sang about "Paree" with her usual sprightly mockery; she also did her "two dozen double damask dinner napkins" routine, which is getting a little threadbare. Dinah Shore sang "I Didn't Know What Time It Was" in her throaty and highly skilled voice. Mr. Fairbanks exhibited an attractive smile, faultlessly cut clothes, a superbly modulated voice and very little else. Mr. LeRoy, a great technician with virtually no imagination, did the same tap dances he has done on a number of other TV shows.

A Worn-Out Routine

AND MR. HOPE? Well, besides jokes and introductions—which he kept mercifully brief—he appeared in a couple of sketches and one song number with Miss Shore.

Just the same, Hope is a great entertainer and he came across as a very appealing figure.

This is the first of five equally pretentious shows that Hope will do on television this year. The others will be on July 4, Labor Day, Thanksgiving and Christmas.

The DISTRICT LINE by Bill Gold

Well, That's What It Sounded Like

All this talk of mercy killings brings in a true story from Mrs. Clara G. Bullard of 1613 Harvard st. nw.

A young fellow came into a Boston library and asked the girl at the desk for books on euthanasia. She was gone for quite a while, but returned empty-handed.

"We've got plenty of material about English youth and German youth and American youth," she explained, "but I don't seem to be able to find a thing about youth in Asia."

QUICKIE QUIZ

Before you look at the end of the column for the answer, Blanche Berlin of 812 Randolph st. nw., wonders if you can rattle off the names of the 13 original colonies.

YOUNG AMERICA

John F. McJennett of 1230 30th st. nw. works for the State Department.

We were kidding him the other day about Senator McCarthy's charges against State. Somebody wisecracked: "Why don't you get them to ship you off to Timbuktu on a Point Four assignment until this blows over, so you won't have to listen to the humorists?"

"That reminds me of a story," replied John. "By a strange coincidence, it happens to be about my daughter Linda, who is 7.

"When we finished listening to the radio the other evening, she asked whether I had ever been on the air. I told her that I had been on several programs.

"'Were you sponsored, Daddy?' she wanted to know. I said no, I wasn't sponsored. 'Why not?' she asked.

"'Well,' I said, 'because I don't have anything to sell.'

PUN FUN

Nate Leiderman of 1508 41st st se. tells me he started life as a diamond cutter. He used to mow the grass at Griffith Stadium.

SHOP TALK

Bill is the compositor who usually makes up this page. Although he's a printer now, he started at The Washington Post as a copy boy.

"The first night," Bill recalls, "they sent me down to the press room for a dozen 'bulldogs' without bothering to explain that a 'bulldog' is a first edition, and not a canine. That was bad enough. But the next day was worse.

"A fellow sent me out for two hamburgers and some shoestrings and after I went all the way up to New York ave. for the laces I found out he wanted potatoes."

KID STUFF

Ernest McIver of 3109 Circle Hill rd., Alexandria, Va., tells me that his 3-year-old Susan is also learning Hide-and-Go-Seek. Her version is:

"Where can I go so you can come find me?"

GIVE-AWAYS

"Black-and-white collie about 1 year old." (Appleton 0202 after 6 p. m.)

"Two-year-old fox terrier." (Victor 0287.)

HOW BROADMINDED CAN YOU GET?

Mrs. Esther W. Claffy of 1743 P st. nw. reports that a Church st. rooming house displays the sign:

Room
Share Man

ANSWER TO QUIZ

Blanche figured the question was so easy there was no use sending along the correct answer, so I'll have to test my own memory—and I'm not going to get booby-trapped on Vermont. I'll take:

New Hampshire, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New York, New Jersey, Delaware, Maryland, Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina and Georgia. P. S.: That's only 12. I forgot Pennsylvania.

CRYSTAL BALL DEPT.

As is our annual custom at this time of year, Jim Wessel of the Associated Press and I present herewith our predictions on the upcoming baseball campaigns.

This year we have been challenged by Herb (Wondrous Nats) Heft and three local sportscasters, who have their own ideas as to how the teams will finish. Radio challengers are Arch McDonald, WTOP and WWDC; Bob Wolff, WWDC and WTTG; and Dutch Bergman of WRC. And here's how we pick 'em.

HEY, D.L.! DID YOU ORDER TERRY AND ME TO JOIN YOU HERE JUST SO THIS JOKER COULD CHECK US FOR HONEST FACES?
FORGIVE MY QUESTIONS, HONORED SIR.
AS AGENT OF THE GOVERNMENT OF CHINA I MUST BE SURE THAT THOSE WHO HANDLE ITS TREASURE ARE WORTHY OF TRUST.
AND YOU'VE MADE A DEAL WITH THE D.L. FOR US TO FLY A CARGO OF YOUR GOVERNMENT'S GOLD ...GUESS YOU'LL HAVE TO TAKE OUR WORD NOT TO LICK OFF ANY ICING.
QUITE SO. I MUST TRUST YOU...THERE IS NOT MUCH TIME...
O.K., MISTER, WHERE DO WE PICK UP THIS CARGO?
UNFORTUNATELY, GENTLEMEN, THE TREASURE MUST BE SNATCHED FROM BENEATH THE GUN MUZZLES OF THOSE WHO HAVE USURPED POWER IN MY HOME LAND.

Senate Jam Perils Fair Deal

By Drew Pearson

With Congress facing an early, election-year adjournment, one of the worst legislative log jams in history is piling up in the Senate and threatening to stall the Truman Fair Deal program.

Pearson

Despite this mountain of unfinished work, however, Democratic leaders have found time to take up two bills completely contrary to the Fair Deal program—the Kerr natural gas bill and the basing point bill, driving loopholes in the antitrust laws.

As a result, some Republicans are thinking of reversing the tables on Truman and making a whistle-stop campaign on their own. They would use Truman's own speeches against the Eightieth Congress to attack the Eighty-first Congress.

Disregarding the politics, however, here is the legislative outlook:

Congress has less than four months to go before adjourning for the election campaign. Even now, Senators and Representatives are slipping away to make campaign speeches.

Nevertheless, the Senate hasn't even called up the civil rights bills, the appropriations bill, or tackled the complicated task of liberalizing the Social Security laws to include 12 million new workers and increase the unemployment benefits.

The Brannan farm plan to support farm income and get rid of unmanageable food stockpiles, is bogged down in the Senate Agriculture Committee, while Herbert Hoover's 21 plans to streamline the Federal Government are getting, nowhere fast.

Easter Vacation

This still leaves the President's controversial health insurance program, the military aid program, and Federal aid to education. The President also promised statehood to Hawaii and Alaska, but the hearings haven't even started in the Senate.

Congress must also decide whether to continue rent controls and renew the draft, to say nothing of revising the tax structure and abolishing excise taxes. Another tough one is the President's Point Four program to give technical assistance to backward areas.

The blunt truth is Congress has a great deal to do, and little time to do it in. Meanwhile, the House, taking a leaf from the President's Key West book, took a leisurely Easter vacation, while both Houses took time to push two bills, aiding the natural gas companies and the big monopolies.

Forgot His Friend

There was only one sour note when freshman Senator Herbert Lehman of New York took the floor to eulogize the late Franklin D. Roosevelt on the fifth anniversary of his death. Ironically, the sour note was struck by a Democrat who rode FDR's coattails to keep his seat in the Senate.

Republicans who were in the chamber — including Langer of North Dakota, Hendrickson of New Jersey, Cordan of Oregon, Schoeppel and Darby of Kansas—remained respectfully in their seats as Lehman began his memorial speech.

So did the Democrats, even crotchety Kenneth McKellar of Tennessee, who fought FDR furiously on most issues.

The only man who walked out, rather than listen to a few kind words spoken for the man who once saved him from defeat, was Elmer Thomas of Oklahoma.

In 1938 when Thomas faced a desperate election battle in the Democratic primary, Franklin Roosevelt detoured his train through Oklahoma in answer to frantic pleas from Thomas, let the worried Senator stand beside him on the back platform, and even made a statement about the fine work of "my friend" Elmer.

But when this same President's death was memorialized in the Senate last week, his "friend" Elmer walked out.

If Children Could Lead

While the Nation's Capital is busy giving Europe the impression that we are torn by dissension and harboring spies behind every door, the American Legion has been showing Europe the best side of the U. S. A.

The tide of toys, organized by the Legion just after Christmas, has been getting a tremendous reception in Western Europe, and even in some countries, such as Finland and Yugoslavia, on the edge of the Iron Curtain.

The reception was so appreciated that Pennsylvania Commander Walter Alessandroni, who led the Legion delegation to Europe, wrote this inspiring letter:

"What impressed me was that the the reactions of these children, whether English, French, German, Italian, Austrian or Scotch, were just the same. No matter what their native origin, they were just children, and you really couldn't tell what country they came from.

"This being true, it becomes difficult to understand why these children when they reach manhood, grow up to be different—grow up to participate in their countries' wars.

"If these children are the same when they are children, and only become different as they reach maturity, the indictment for this change falls upon us. We have seen a world with war and unrest taking place somewhere in that world during every year of recorded history. America bears a tremendous responsibility in helping these thousands of youngsters, to grow up like our own."

It was a blue ribbon day for The Hecht Co. Fashions when Washington's popular Virginia Baker previewed next Friday's Fort Myer Dog Show. Tails wagged in the kennels, as the limelight swung to the vivacious Virginia. Talk waxed enthusiastic over The Hecht Co. fashion of Virginia's choice (a swirl-skirted, light-ground summery print by Jules of California, at 22.95). As for her Hecht Co. hat . . . even the Cockers and Boxers barked their approval! Like so many of Miss Baker's costumes for Washington's important social functions, this, too, came from The Hecht Co.'s famous Fashion Floor, where thoroughbred fashions and blue-blood fashion-names await you in wide selection always.
